Don't Light Cigars, Cigarets During Dim-Outs, Public Told

It won't be illegal for you to be abroad during next week's dim-out tests, but you're liable to arrest if you light your cigaret or cigar on the street, or, in a blacked-out restaurant, cafe or similar place.

This warning came today from Common Pleas Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch defense co-ordinator, who explained that auxiliary police enrolled in a civilian defense protective unit, will be on duty throughout the dimmed-out sections and will be empowered to make arrests.

"There is a deplorable psychology" Judge Kalbfleisch said, "that will impel many persons to run out of doors to see what the dimmed-out neighborhood looks like. Strictly, only those having essential business out of doors should be abroad during the 20-minute test. Doors should not be opened rom the time the warning sounds at 9 p. m. until the all-clear signal which will follow in about 20 minutes.

"Householders must extinguish their lights on the warning signal and not wait for the air raid alert signal which will follow the warning by a few minutes."

Restaurant and cafe workers and workers in other places of public assembly are asked to warn patrons to refrain from lighting cigarets or cigars during the test.

Air raid wardens, messengers and the police auxiliary are the only protective units which will mobilize during the test. Judge Kalbfleisch and Captain Jesse Schwab, defense commander, have ruled. Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger, organizer and instructor of the OCD firemen's auxiliary and member of Captain Schwab's executive board, will not assemble his auxiliary for the four nights of tests.

MORE COFFEE

Reports Say Beverage Ration Will Be Increased.

WASHINGTON - (UP) - Reliable sources said today that coffee rations may be somewhat increased in the near future.

Price administration officials refused comment on the report but said they were giving thought to the coffee supply with a view to determining whether present consumption limits should be retained.

Coffee importers in New York said yesterday that sizeable amounts of coffee had reached this country since Jan. 31. On that date, coffee stocks for civilian consumption reached a record low of 1,103,752 bags of 132 pounds each.

But stocks have been materially increased since then, importers said, and the present supply available for civilians probably exceeds the 1,474,190-bag total reported at the end of 1942.

STUDY RATIONS

Restaurant Owners Fear Heavier Supply Cut.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Robert R. Williams, executive secretary of the Ohio State Restaurant association, said today that Ohio's restaurant owners will decide at a closed meeting tomorrow its plans for seeking relief from rationing.

Williams claimed that the cut in rationed foods to restaurants will be more than the 50 per cent estimated by the federal government.

IMMORTAL OF BASEBALL DIES

Jimmy Collins Was Known As Greatest Third Baseman.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—(AP)—James J. (Jimmy) Collins, 73, one of baseball's greatest third basemen and manager of the 1903 Boston Red Sox, first team to win a world series, died today of pneumonia.

A native of Niagara Falls, he started in 1893 with Buffalo of the old Eastern league, broke into the big time with the Boston Braves in 1895, and moved to the Red Sox as manager in 1901 when the American league was organized.

Collins was known as the first third baseman to play away from the bag and first to master defense against bunts He had a lifetime batting average of .296 and fielding average of .929.

HONOR SYSTEM FOR RATIONS, PRICES URGED

New OPA Assistant Calls For Parades, Bands to 'Sell' Program to Public.

WARNS 'TRAITORS'

Promises to Pay Closer Heed To Civilian Needs In the Future.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—(UP)- Clyde L. Herring, newly appointed senior assistant to Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown, hopes soon to substitute the "honor system" for police enforcement in the whole sphere of rationing and price control.

He urged organization of rationing observance drives on a community basis similar to Red Cross campaigns.

"The people," he said in an interview with the United Press, "ought to get out with flags and bands and hold parades to make rationing popular. Hitherto the country as a whole never has been sold on the idea of rationing and price control."

The former Iowa senator revealed that the OPA is embarking on a new policy of "selling" rationing to the people, but warned that the penalty for "traitors" would be severe.

"We shall demand drastic penalties from the few traitors who betray their fellow-countrymen by breaking the rationing and price regulations established to protect the whole community," he said.

Herring said that in the future OPA would pay closer attention to civilian needs and declared that attempts to bring the standard of living down to anything approaching a 'bedrock economy' level would be disastrous.

Extension of the "honor system" all along the line, Herring said, will depend in part on its success in halting pleasure driving. Earlier this week Brown announced that police enforcement of the pleasure driving ban would cease and indicated that the ban may be withdrawn altogether and replaced by the "honor system."

"OPA's job," he said, "is not to harass but to protect the people Let the people themselves be made responsible for carrying out rationing and price measures instituted by OPA for their protection We would prefer OPA to

REPORT WASTE

Business Men Say Huge Cargo Of Butter Spoils In Alaska.

SEATTLE —(AP)— Business men returned from Alaska told today, the Post-Intelligencer said, of a cargo of 350 tons of butter landed on an Alaskan beach and left there through the winter because of a lack of storage space in the unidentified town.

The Post-Intelligencer quoted them as saying much of the huge cargo already had spoiled because the brine in which it was packed froze and broke the barrels. They said the shipment arrived last October from the civilian reserve food supply agency.

The Alaskans reported much of a cargo of 70 tons of canned pears also froze and burst their containers.

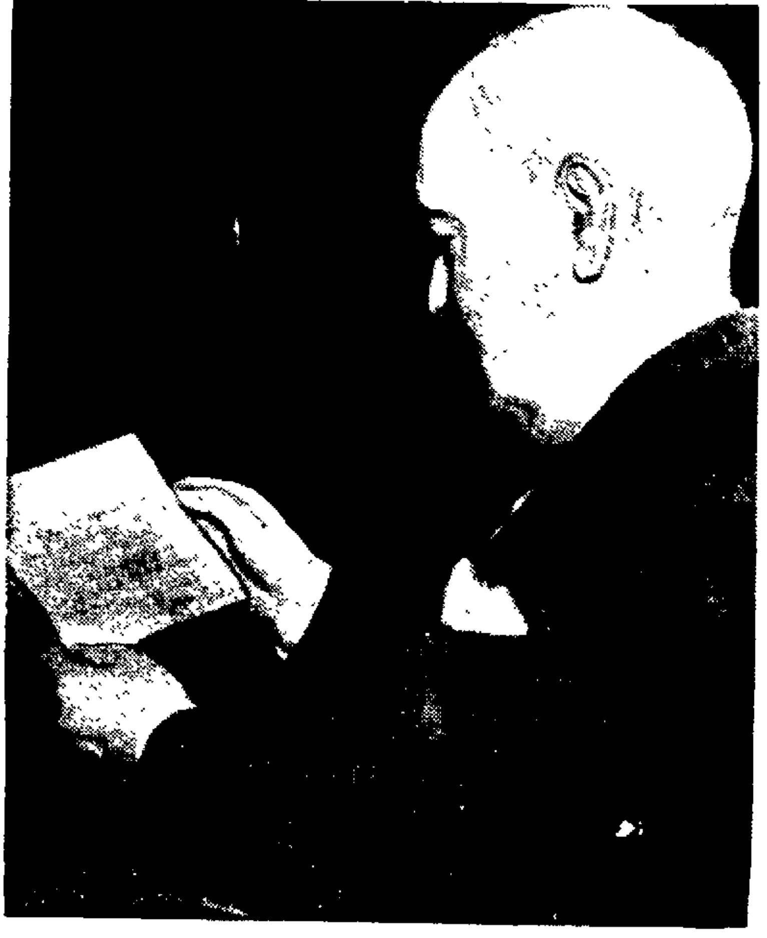
BOY CONFESSES

Admits Starting Blaze In Parma High School.

CLEVELAND - (AP) - Police Chief Garry Burczyk of suburban Parma said today a 14-year-old boy had confessed setting Parma Junior high school afire to destroy evidence of deficient grades, and had implicated two other youths.

The boy will be charged in juvenile court with responsibility for the fire, which caused $15,000 in damage, the chief said.

'For God's Sake Let Us Fight'



Lieut. Col Elliott Roosevelt's letter protesting "unfair" criticism of himself and his brothers by congressmen, especially Representative William P. Lambertson (R.) of Kansas, is held above, by Representative Fritz Lanham (D.) of Texas, to whom it was addressed, after he had read it on the floor of the house. The president's son, stationed with the army air forces in North Africa, pleaded, "For God's sake let us fight without being stabbed in the back for the sake of politics."

WAR FUND ROLLS UP TO $17,204

Red Cross Gets First Rural Reports: Lucas, Monroe Township Over Quota.

Mansfied added $1,755 to its Red Cross war fund yesterday bringing the total to $17,204 toward the city quota of $15,500 First scattered returns, most of them incomplete, came in from rural areas today.

Lucas became the first village of the county to complete its canvas with Mrs. Hazel Swain, chairman, reporting collection of $176.23 The entire Monroe township quota, including Lucas, was only $219, with Roy Mengert, the township chairman outside the village, having already turned in $105 with his canvass not nearly complete.

Workers in the Bellville area, with many yet to be contacted, have far more than doubled their quotas, according to Mrs. K. M. Wilson, chairman, with Mrs. R. B. Ridenour, Washington township, and Mrs. Howard McCartney, Mifflin township, making similar reports. Hickory Hall rural school, where pupils collected $1.55, became the first one-room school to report.

Incomplete returns in Sandusky township revealed collection of $74.47, and incomplete returns from Butler township's one man

FINAL FLING?

Winter's to Bring More Snow In Northern Ohio Tonight.

Mansfielders hoped today that winter was having a final fling as a mixture of snow, sleet, and rain coated streets and sidewalks with ice and periled motorists and pedestrians.

Rain which began to fall about daylight froze into a crust on the snow, and highways were reported slippery throughout the state. Despite the bad driving conditions, state patrolmen said no accidents had been reported at noon today in the Mansfield area.

Moderate to heavy snow was forecast for today in the northern half of Ohio while the mercury was expected to remain near or below freezing.

HURT IN CRASH

Perrysville Resident Injured In Vermont Plane Mishap.

Perry E. Draper 24, Perrysville, was among four Civil Aeronautics fliers reported injured early today in a plane crack-up near the Burlington, Vt., municipal airport.

Draper, son of Mr. and Mrs Harry Draper of Perrysville, received his first civilian pilot training at the Mansfield airport and has been stationed in New England since last fall.

He is a student in the CAA war training program in Vermont. Extent of his injuries was not learned.

Civil Service Urges General Pay Raise For State Employes.

COLUMBUS - (UP) - General wage increases for state workers were recommended today by Dwight Swisher, attorney for the Ohio Civil Service Employes' association, who pointed out that approximately 7,000 employes left state services in 1942, exclusive of those entering military services.

The administration is recommending an increase only for those getting less than $2,000 annually.

Yanks Capture Pichon; Soviets Take 29 Towns

Reds Press Beyond Kharkov, Kursk In Stepped-Up Drive on Foe.

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—The Red army stormed into the railroad town of Osuga, 16 miles south of Rzhev, and overran 29 other towns and villages today in its dash for Smolensk, Germany's key base on the central front.

The Russians now had captured 133 towns and villages in the past 36 hours—an average of nearly four villages an hour—in their breath-taking advance south and southwest of Rzhev that was rapidly dissolving the dangerous enemy salient before Moscow.

Soviet forces also were pressing forward northwest of Kharkov and west and northwest of Kursk and the capture of a number of additional settlements on these fronts was reported.

Red army units driving down the Rzhev-Vyazma railroad killed 800 officers and men in a stubborn battle that ended with the capture of the Osuga railroad station, the Soviet mid-day communique said Three planes, 57 tanks and eight guns were captured.

Osuga lies 54 miles north of Vyazma, southeastern anchor of the German salient before Moscow, and 30 miles northwest of Gzhatsk easternmost point held by the Axis on the central front.

The other 29 towns whose capture was announced in the mid-day communique were identified only as "south and southwest" of Rzhev, which lies 140 miles northeast of Smolensk, main concentration point for Axis forces on the central front.

The Germans were offering subborn resistance with tanks and infantry, according to the midnight communique, which reported the capture of 50 inhabited places in yesterday fighting. The previous mid-day communique had announced the seizure of 53 towns and villages.

The other outstanding Soviet

AN ADVANCED ALLIED AIR BASE IN LIBYA—(INS)—The Allied air force with the British Eighth army has gone on a 24-hour attack schedule in a determined effort to sweep the enemy out of the skies.

(By United Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTES. NORTH AFRICA—Allied armored forces have captured the important town of Pichon in central Tunisia in a drive eastward that now threatens Kairouan and the vital Axis reinforcement port of Sousse.

The capture of Pichon was accomplished by American forces. The first troops in the town were armored patrols consisting of infantry and armored cars. By taking the town the Americans won control of the entrance of a pass that leads to Kairouan.

The drive carried the advanced elements of the Allied forces to within about 50 air-line miles of the coast of Tunisia. If the offensive can be sustained, the Allies might be able to drive a wedge between the northern and southern Axis forces in Tunisia by cutting all the way across to Sousse.

Sousse, heavily battered by Allied air attacks in recent weeks, is the port which Marshal Erwin Rommel has been using to feed troops and supplies to his forces in central Tunisia which rolled through the Kasserine pass and threatened to break the entire Allied line a few weeks ago.

Enemy activity on the northern Tunisian front died down, and Allied patrols seized the initiative and made local gains, a headquarters communique said.

A total of 30 enemy tanks have been destroyed since Rommel's forces started their attack in the north.

Front dispatches said that British forces, after driving the Ger-

TENTH DAY: Continuous RAF Raids Swing to City of Essen

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Striking hard at Germany for the tenth consecutive night, British bombers made a heavy, concentrated attack on the industrial city of Essen, the air ministry announced today.

Fourteen of the RAF planes failed to return, indicating that the attack was carried out by a force of 250 to 300 of Britain's biggest bombers.

It was the 52nd attack on Essen which was last raided January 13.

The raiding force was understood to have been unusually powerful Two and four-ton bombs, the heaviest in the British arsenal, were showered on the target area, together with the usual complement of incendiaries.

The Deutschlandsender and Berlin radio stations went off the air at 9:15 last night, indicating the approach of the RAF raiders.

The Berlin radio admitted that RAF bombers were over western Germany and claimed that 11 of the raiders had been shot down. As usual, the German announcement tried to give the impression that all of the bombs fell in residential sections.

A number of buildings were destroyed and there were some casualties the Berlin report admitted.

Other RAF formations bombed targets on the French coast during the night and early morning

TRIPHAMMER: Air Blows Hit Lae as Land Patrols Advance

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(UP)—A U. S. naval task force bombarded Munda and Villa. Japanese air bases in the central Solomons and sank two large enemy destroyers which sought to drive our ships off, the navy announced today. No American vessel was lost in the engagement.

(By United Press)

GEN. M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia — Allied planes have renewed their triphammer blows on Lae, Japan's biggest remaining base in New Guinea, after wiping out the last enemy survivors of the battle of the Bismarck sea as they sought to escape in lifeboats, barges and rafts, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today

The Allies were believed hatching a coordinated land and air offensive against Lae and the adjacent Salamaua area along the northern coast of New Guinea. Allied patrols pushing northeastward from the airdrome at Wau already have driven Japanese advance forces back to Mubo, within 10 miles of Salamaua, 20 miles south of Lae.

Wave after wave of Allied planes drawn from all categories of MacArthur's air arm blasted and strafed the Japanese airdromes and adjacent installations yesterday and kindled fires visible 40 miles.

Weak enemy forces attempted to intercept the raiders, the communique said, but were dispersed

STOCK PRICES DIP DOWNWARD AFTER RALLY

Net Operating Income of Railroads Jumps 57 Per Cent in Year.

By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stock prices took a lower slant in early dealings today on the heels of yesterday's last-minute weakness, although there was scattered resistance.

Off fractionally at the start were, among other things, Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, United Aircraft, J. I. Case and American Smelting. Rails held up.

On the side of the carriers was an interstate commerce commission tabulation showing net operating income of 136 class 1 railroads for January up 57.5 per cent from January of a year ago at $105,304,320 before fixed charges. Total revenue was up 39.7 per cent at $671,334,151.

GRANDMOTHER 'FIGHTS' TOO

SAN DIEGO, Cal. (U.P.) When her three grandsons enlisted in aviation bombing squadrons, their grandmother, Mrs. Hattie Jenkins, went to work for the Consolidated Aircraft Corp., to help build bombers for them. She had served as a nurse in World War I, but decided that was too "soft" for the grandmother of bombers in the war.

DECLARES PRESS WAR ESSENTIAL

Rep. Halleck Asserts Papers Should Be Considered Vital Industry.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON - Rep. Charles A. Halleck, R., Ind., told the house today that the press of the nation "must be classed as an essential war industry and given consideration as such."

The list of newspaper accomplishments in the war effort is endless, Halleck said. He suggested that some of the paper used by government bureaucrats could "more properly" be allotted to newspapers which have been cut 10 per cent.

"Let us not tolerate any carelessness and groundless opinions on the part of those who drafted these regulations . . . and who threaten further curtailment in the amounts of paper which newspapers can use," he declared.

"If there are some whose animosity leads them to attempt to destroy the newspapers which stand between them and their goal, let us seek them out and render them harmless.

"For when you destroy the newspapers, you destroy one of the most effective internal implements of war and of peace which this nation possesses."

HEAR DIM-OUT RULES MAPPED

Merchants Told About Tests To Be Made in City By CD During Next Week.

Every commercial business in Mansfield was represented at a conference this morning in the Chamber of Commerce assembly room when Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, civilian defense coordinator, explained the requirements of next week's test dimouts.

"It was a successful meeting, revealing a great interest in protective programs," Judge Kalbfleisch declared. "Every merchant in Mansfield apparently is wholeheartedly going along with the OCD program."

Judge Kalbfleisch and Police Captain Jesse Schwab, defense commander of protective units, explained dimout regulations. Window display lights must be turned off during the sectional test including the store or office building. Any assembly room light kept burning must be shielded to prevent it being seen from the outside.

The Park avenue and Main street sectional divisions apply to the directional side of the thoroughfares, Judge Kalbfleisch said. In the first dimout at 9 p. m. Monday embracing the area south of Park avenue west and west of South Main street only the structures on the south side of Park avenue and the west side of Main street will be dimmed out.

On Tuesday night the north side of Park avenue and west side of North Main street will comply; on Wednesday night the south side of Park avenue east and the east side of Main street; on Thursday night the north side of Park avenue east and the east side of Main street. Only the areas within the corporate limits will be dimmed out.

Air raid wardens, messengers and auxiliary police are the only civilian defense units which will mobolize on the long steady tone of the sirens at 9 p. m. The rising-and-falling alert will follow in a few minutes with a steadily-toned "all clear" signal in about 20 minutes.

OPA Frees More Machinery for County Farmers

With the year's quotas of some types of farm machinery already exhausted in Richland county, the county farm machinery ration board announced today that the OPA had released 18 more tractor-drawn plows and three more manure spreaders for sale during the year.

The annual quota of plows was increased from 37 to 55 and the number of manure spreaders available was boosted from 10 to 13. Increases in other types of machinery, especially combines, corn pickers, and hay balers, are anticipated by the county ration board.

Farmers have already received orders to purchase all of the 31 tractor cultivators and 14 hammermills allotted the county. Eight applications to buy corn planters have been approved. The county was allocated 14 planters.

The quota of 10 farm wagons seems to be adequate, board members said, since only two applications for wagons have been received by the board.

The county's quota permit the purchase of 32 tractors, 27 disc harrows, and 10 grain drills.

Waives Hearing — Elva I. DeVole, Columbus, posted $16.30 and signed a waiver in municipal court this morning on charges of speeding on U. S. Route 42 yesterday afternoon, state patrolmen reported.

Waitress Ill — Police Lieutenant Carl J. Kalstern and Patrolman Don Mitchell yesterday took Pearl Wageman, 238½ North Main street, to General hospital after she had been stricken by illness while working at the Green Leaf cafe, North Main street.

Stolen Dog Seen — Police were told late yesterday by a pedestrian that he had seen a shabbily dressed man leading the mackinaw-blanketed fox terrier puppy reported missing Tuesday from the home of Mrs. R. E. Burns, 60 South Weldon avenue. The puppy reportedly is valuable.

McGregor Better — Congressman J. Harry McGregor of the 17th district, who underwent a major operation in Washington about a month ago, continues to improve, but he will not be able to return to his office for several weeks, a report from his secretary said today.

Ration Office Hours — Charles Beelman, chairman of the Richland county war price and rationing board, said today that numerous calls are received inquiring office hours. They are 8:30 a. m., to 5:30 p. m., on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. On Wednesday the ration board office closes at 12 noon.

Hear Marine — Kiwanis club members heard Corp. Foye Charles, Mansfield marine, recently returned from Guadalcanal, tell of his experiences on the embattled island, at their meeting yesterday noon at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. President H. H. Schettler gave a report on the book collection for men in service.

Hours Extended—The county treasurer's office at the courthouse will remain open until 4 p. m. Saturday for the convenience of property owners who have difficulty finding any other time to pay their taxes, Treasurer Charles Payne said. Real estate tax payments today had reached $443,717 of a total current tax charge of $711,822 for the first half of the year. Tax books close Wednesday.

Glattke Honored—Current issue of the "New Day" publication of Ohio State Reformatory carries a tribute to Superintendent Arthur L. Glattke who last Monday completed eight years as head of the institution. Prior to his appointment here Glattke was athletic director of Libbey high school in Toledo.

List Totals 68—When prospective members of the three new Girl Scout troops at Western avenue school with their mothers attended a preliminary meeting at the school yesterday, 68 names of prospective members were read by Miss Eleanor Bond, executive director. There will be two brownie troops composed of 17 and 21 girls between the ages of seven and ten, and an intermediate troop of 27 between the ages of 10 and 14.

Takes New Post—Mary Hughes, 244 Marion avenue, soon will begin her duties as bookkeeper of the sanitary sewer department in the city finance offices. Miss Hughes will take the post vacated by Ray Hines who steps up to the desk vacated by the resignation Tuesday of Charles Anglin, now with Westinghouse. She formerly had been employed in the waterworks office and recently as office secretary of the Visiting Nurses' associaton.

Gets Cash, Food—A hungry thief who was also dry obtained, among other things, $2 in cash when he prowled the home of Mrs. Stanley Cervinski, 291 Spring street, during the family absence early last night. After Joe Hammer, 296 Spring street, had notified police for his neighbor, she told Lieut. Carl J. Kalstein and Patrolman Realiff Hout that an intruder had eaten several hamburger patties left on the kitchen table.

Bellville Quota Raised — With 720 abdominal dressings completed after 508 hours work by 10 women this week, the Bellville Red Cross group received word yesterday that their March quota would be 1,100 dressings, according to co-chairmen Mrs. K. M. Wilson and Mrs. J. B. Kochheiser. The Bellville women sew every day except Sunday at the Red Cross headquarters in the Wilson building.

Postal Warning — Employes of the Mansfield postoffice today passed on to the public a warning issued by the third assistant postmaster general concerning proper addressing of soldier mail. Many letters go to the dead letter office daily, the bulletin reported, because of incomplete addresses. Postal clerks are asked to return letters to the senders when they know the addresses is incorrect or incomplete.

Don't Light Cigars, Cigarets During Dim-Outs, Public Told

It won't be illegal for you to be abroad during next week's dim-out tests, but you're liable to arrest if you light your cigaret or cigar on the street, or in a blacked-out restaurant, cafe or similar place

This warning came today from Common Pleas Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch defense co-ordinator, who explained that auxiliary police enrolled in a civilian defense protective unit, will be on duty throughout the dimmed-out sections and will be empowered to make arrests.

"There is a deplorable psychology" Judge Kalbfleisch said, "that will impel many persons to run out of doors to see what the dimmed-out neighborhood looks like. Strictly, only those having essential business out of doors should be abroad during the 20-minute test. Doors should not be opened from the time the warning sounds at 9 p. m. until the all-clear signal which will follow in about 20 minutes.

"Householders must extinguish their lights on the warning signal and not wait for the air raid alert signal which will follow the warning by a few minutes"

Restaurant and cafe workers and workers in other places of public assembly are asked to warn patrons to refrain from lighting cigarets or cigars during the test.

Air raid wardens, messengers and the police auxiliary are the only protective units which will mobilize during the test, Judge Kalbfleisch and Captain Jesse Schwab, defense commander, have ruled. Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger, organizer and instructor of the OCD firemen's auxiliary and member of Captain Schwab's executive board, will not assemble his auxiliary for the four nights of tests

MORE COFFEE

Reports Say Beverage Ration Will Be Increased.

WASHINGTON -- (U.P) -- Reliable sources said today that coffee rations may be somewhat increased in the near future.

Price administration officials refused comment on the report but said they were giving thought to the coffee supply with a view to determining whether present consumption limits should be retained.

Coffee importers in New York said yesterday that sizeable amounts of coffee had reached this country since Jan. 31. On that date, coffee stocks for civilian consumption reached a record low of 1,103,752 bags of 132 pounds each.

But stocks have been materially increased since then, importers said, and the present supply available for civilians probably exceeds the 1,474,190-bag total reported at the end of 1942.

Restaurant Owners Fear Heavier Supply Cut.

COLUMBUS -- (U.P) -- Robert R. Williams, executive secretary of the Ohio State Restaurant association, said today that Ohio's restaurant owners will decide at a closed meeting tomorrow its plans for seeking relief from rationing.

Williams claimed that the cut in rationed foods to restaurants will be more than the 50 per cent estimated by the federal government.

BUFFALO, N. Y.--(AP)--James J. (Jimmy) Collins, 73, one of baseball's greatest third basemen and manager of the 1903 Boston Red Sox, first team to win a world series, died today of pneumonia.

A native of Niagara Falls, he started in 1893 with Buffalo of the old Eastern league, broke into the big time with the Boston Braves in 1895, and moved to the Red Sox as manager in 1901 when the American league was organized.

Collins was known as the first third baseman to play away from the bag and first to master defense against bunts. He had a lifetime batting average of .296 and fielding average of .929.

HONOR SYSTEM FOR RATIONS, PRICES URGED

New OPA Assistant Calls For Parades, Bands to 'Sell' Program to Public.

WARNS 'TRAITORS'

Promises to Pay Closer Heed To Civilian Needs In the Future.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Clyde L Herring, newly appointed senior assistant to Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown, hopes soon to substitute the "honor system" for police enforcement in the whole sphere of rationing and price control.

He urged organization of rationing observance drives on a community basis similar to Red Cross campaigns.

"The people," he said in an interview with the United Press, "ought to get out with flags and bands and hold parades to make rationing popular. Hitherto the country as a whole never has been sold on the idea of rationing and price control."

The former Iowa senator revealed that the OPA is embarking on a new policy of "selling" rationing to the people, but warned that the penalty for "traitors" would be severe.

"We shall demand drastic penalties from the few traitors who betray their fellow-countrymen by breaking the rationing and price regulations established to protect the whole community," he said.

Herring said that in the future OPA would pay closer attention to civilian needs and declared that attempts to bring the standard of living down to anything approaching a "bedrock economy" level would be disastrous.

Extension of the "honor system" all along the line, Herring said, will depend in part on its success in halting pleasure driving. Earlier this week Brown announced that police enforcement of the pleasure driving ban would cease and indicated that the ban may be withdrawn altogether and replaced by the "honor system"

"OPA's job," he said, "is not to harass but to protect the people Let the people themselves be made responsible for carrying out rationing and price measures instituted by OPA for their protection. We would prefer OPA to

Business Men Say Huge Cargo Of Butter Spoils In Alaska.

SEATTLE --(AP)-- Business men returned from Alaska told today, the Post-Intelligencer said, of a cargo of 350 tons of butter landed on an Alaskan beach and left there through the winter because of a lack of storage space in the unidentified town.

The Post-Intelligencer quoted them as saying much of the huge cargo already had spoiled because the brine in which it was packed froze and broke the barrels. They said the shipment arrived last October from the civilian reserve food supply agency.

The Alaskans reported much of a cargo of 70 tons of canned pears also froze and burst their containers.

Red Cross Gets First Rural Reports: Lucas, Monroe Township Over Quota.

Mansfied added $1,755 to its Red Cross war fund yesterday bringing the total to $17,204 toward the city quota of $15,500. First scattered returns, most of them incomplete, came in from rural areas today.

Lucas became the first village of the county to complete its canvas with Mrs. Hazel Swain, chairman, reporting collection of $176.23. The entire Monroe township quota, including Lucas, was only $219, with Roy Mengert, the township chairman outside the village, having already turned in $105 with his canvass not nearly complete.

Workers in the Bellville area, with many yet to be contacted, have far more than doubled their quotas, according to Mrs. K. M. Wilson, chairman, with Mrs. R. B. FINAL FLING?

Winter's to Bring More Snow In Northern Ohio Tonight.

Mansfielders hoped today that winter was having a final fling as a mixture of snow, sleet, and rain coated streets and sidewalks with ice and periled motorists and pedestrians.

Rain which began to fall about daylight froze into a crust on the snow, and highways were reported slippery throughout the state. Despite the bad driving conditions, state patrolmen said no accidents had been reported at noon today in the Mansfield area.

Moderate to heavy snow was forecast for today in the northern half of Ohio while the mercury was expected to remain near or below freezing.

Yanks Capture Pichon; Soviets Take 29 Towns

Reds Press Beyond Kharkov, Kursk In Stepped-Up Drive on Foe.

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—The Red army stormed into the railroad town of Osuga, 16 miles south of Rzhev, and overran 29 other towns and villages today in its dash for Smolensk, Germany's key base on the central front.

The Russians now had captured 133 towns and villages in the past 36 hours—an average of nearly four villages an hour—in their breath-taking advance south and southwest of Rzhev that was rapidly dissolving the dangerous enemy salient before Moscow.

Soviet forces also were pressing forward northwest of Kharkov and west and northwest of Kursk and the capture of a number of additional settlements on these fronts was reported.

Red army units driving down the Rzhev-Vyazma railroad killed 800 officers and men in a stubborn battle that ended with the capture of the Osuga railroad station, the Soviet mid-day communique said. Three planes, 57 tanks and eight guns were captured

Osuga lies 54 miles north of Vyazma, southeastern anchor of the German salient before Moscow, and 30 miles northwest of Gzhatsk, easternmost point held by the Axis on the central front

The other 29 towns whose capture was announced in the mid-day communique were identified only as "south and southwest" of Rzhev, which lies 140 miles northeast of Smolensk, main concentration point for Axis forces on the central front.

The Germans were offering subborn resistance with tanks and infantry, according to the midnight communique, which reported the capture of 50 inhabited places in yesterday fighting. The previous mid-day communique had announced the seizure of 53 towns and villages.

The other outstanding Soviet

AN ADVANCED ALLIED AIR BASE IN LIBYA—(INS) —The Allied air force with the British Eighth army has gone on a 24-hour attack schedule in a determined effort to sweep the enemy out of the skies.

(By United Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTES, NORTH AFRICA—Allied armored forces have captured the important town of Pichon in central Tunisia in a drive eastward that now threatens Kairouan and the vital Axis reinforcement port of Sousse.

The capture of Pichon was accomplished by American forces. The first troops in the town were armored patrols consisting of infantry and armored cars. By taking the town the Americans won control of the entrance of a pass that leads to Kairouan.

The drive carried the advanced elements of the Allied forces to within about 50 airline miles of the coast of Tunisia. If the offensive can be sustained, the Allies might be able to drive a wedge between the northern and southern Axis forces in Tunisia by cutting all the way across to Sousse.

Sousse, heavily battered by Allied air attacks in recent weeks, is the port which Marshal Erwin Rommel has been using to feed troops and supplies to his forces in central Tunisia which rolled through the Kasserine pass and threatened to break the entire Allied line a few weeks ago.

Enemy activity on the northern Tunisian front died down, and Allied patrols seized the initiative and made local gains, a headquarters communique said.

A total of 30 enemy tanks have been destroyed since Rommel's forces started their attack in the north.

TENTH DAY: Continuous RAF Raids Swing to City of Essen

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Striking hard at Germany for the tenth consecutive night, British bombers made a heavy, concentrated attack on the industrial city of Essen, the air ministry announced today.

Fourteen of the RAF planes failed to return, indicating that the attack was carried out by a force of 250 to 300 of Britain's biggest bombers.

It was the 52nd attack on Essen which was last raided January 13.

The raiding force was understood to have been unusually powerful Two and four-ton bombs, the heaviest in the British arsenal, were showered on the target area, together with the usual complement of incendiaries.

The Deutschlandsender and Berlin radio stations went off the air at 9:15 last night, indicating the approach of the RAF raiders.

The Berlin radio admitted that RAF bombers were over western Germany and claimed that 14 of the raiders had been shot down. As usual, the German announcement tried to give the impression that all of the bombs fell in residential sections.

A number of buildings were destroyed and there were some casualties, the Berlin report admitted.

Other RAF formations bombed targets on the French coast during the night and early morning

TRIPHAMMER: Air Blows Hit Lae as Land Patrols Advance

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(UP)—A U. S. naval task force bombarded Munda and Villa, Japanese air bases in the central Solomons and sank two large enemy destroyers which sought to drive our ships off, the navy announced today. No American vessel was lost in the engagement.

(By United Press)

GEN. M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia — Allied planes have renewed their triphammer blows on Lae, Japan's biggest remaining base in New Guinea, after wiping out the last enemy survivors of the battle of the Bismarck sea as they sought to escape in lifeboats, barges and rafts, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

The Allies were believed hatching a coordinated land and air offensive against Lae and the adjacent Salamaua area along the northern coast of New Guinea. Allied patrols pushing northeastward from the airdrome at Wau already have driven Japanese advance forces back to Mubo, within 10 miles of Salamaua, 20 miles south of Lae.

Wave after wave of Allied planes drawn from all categories of MacArthur's air arm blasted and strafed the Japanese airdromes and adjacent installations yesterday and kindled fires visible 40 miles.

Weak enemy forces attempted to intercept the raiders, the communique said, but were dispersed

IN THE CAPITAL--

By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—Somebody had the awkwardness or bad taste, if nothing more, to mark off the end of President Roosevelt's first decade in office by bringing up the subject of a fourth term in connection with a visit of Democratic politicians to the White House.

Clapper

One can't make out exactly what happened. Apparently the Democratic politicians did some kidding about a fourth term when they saw the president on the eve of his tenth anniversary in office. The chairman of the Democratic national committee, Frank C. Walker, was along and he said that although the fourth term was mentioned, it was not a serious presentation and that it brought no response from the president. Mr. Walker said he did not know whether President Roosevelt heard the remarks, and if he did, he smiled them off.

That, at any rate, is the way the affair is reported by the White House correspondents, who are usually pretty accurate about such things. Then Chairman Walker makes the comment that this is no time to discuss a candidate for 1944. That is the redeeming remark about the whole business, and it is to be hoped that Mr. Walker was not merely trying to hedge against the trial balloon that he had permitted to go up from his own little group.

Judgment can well be reserved about a fourth term. Conditions next year may make it desirable that President Roosevelt continue in office beyond the end of his present term.

But that is not a question to be ballyhooed on the anniversary of ten years in office. The very possibility that such a situation may arise out of the war makes especially offensive these current maneuvers of frightened Democratic politicians to whoop him into the nomination now.

I find it a little more reassuring to the spirit to think of a couple of other events that suggest to me the strength of American democracy in the midst of total war.

One is the stir caused by the death of the White House peanut vendor, Steve Vasilakos. He had his peanut wagon on the northeast White House corner for years. After Pearl Harbor he sold war bonds as well as peanuts. The point about Steve's death is that it has been reported on page one of American newspapers along with the most important news of the day. This humble man of Greek birth received a whole editorial in the New York Times. The Times described Steve as a self-respecting business man whose career would have been impossible in Nazi Germany where a Berlin peanut vender would have to be a spy, a toady, or a payer of petty blackmail to the Gestapo.

Also suggesting that American democracy continues to function in the midst of total war is the action of the supreme court in setting aside the conviction of the Nazi propagandist, George Sylvester Viereck. He was financed with Nazi money. But his conviction was set aside on technical grounds of errors in trial procedure. The supreme court said that the conviction could not stand, however deserving of punishment Viereck's conduct might seem.

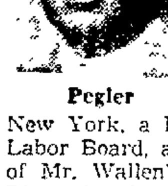
So it is hard to believe any propagandist who says that democracy is on the way out in America's total war. You can't even get up a witch hunt—except against Harry Hopkins or Paul McNutt, or some other official.

FAIR ENOUGH--

By Westbrook Pegler

BOSTON—Among those present at the banquet and installation exercises of the central Massachusetts joint board of the Textile Workers of America, CIO, in Worcester, on Jan. 16, were three officials of the National War Labor Board.

Among the union officials of the textile workers then and there consecrated to the cause of Labor with an upper-case L, was Amos Cote, elevated to the post of president of the central Massachusetts joint board, who has been identified by the vice squad of the Worcester police department as a convicted brothel-keeper, petty gambler and drunkard with no record as a worker, but with a record of three terms in jail.



Pegler

The government officials who made speeches were Saul Wallen, director of the first, or New England region of the National War Labor Board; Emil Rieve, of New York, a labor member of the National War Labor Board, and J. William Bellanger, a member of Mr. Wallen's regional War Labor Board. Mr. Rieve is also national president of the Textile Workers and Mr. Bellanger is regional director of the union. All three are presumed to have been selected for the War Labor Board on the assumption that they were informed and conscientious experts in labor relations who would know the personalities and background of influential union representatives and would neither actively nor passively encourage the elevation of a disreputable person to a position of power in any union.

On Mr. Wallen's behalf it is suggested by Hugh Kingsley, press representative of the regional War Labor Board, that he could not be expected to know the personal history of every union official and other person present at the many union gatherings which it is his duty to attend.

As to Mr. Rieve, and Mr. Bellanger, the same excuse would be less convincing. The Textile Workers Union is not so large and scattered that Mr. Rieve could not reasonably be expected to be personally acquainted with the new president of a joint board of 32 of his locals in the geographical heart of his union jurisdiction.

Mr. Kingsley, [illegible] it granted that he is only an employe and not an official of the War Labor Board, achieved a fine feat of detachment in his own ignorance of the character of Brother Cote. For Mr. Kingsley was a Worcester newspaper reporter who might have got wind of one of the more notorious police characters and he was, and remains, president of the Worcester chapter of the American Newspaper guild, also a union of the CIO. Mr. Kingsley states nevertheless, that he never heard of Brother Cote during his time as a reporter and CIO union president in Worcester, explaining that the Worcester guild was apart from other unions and not a member of any CIO council.

Still, speaking personally, as he was careful to make plain, Mr. Kingsley said he would not be disposed to co-operate in any expose of Brother Cote's past and present and of his rise in unionism. This he thought would be a story harmful to a union and he would want no part in that.

Asked whether he thought the disclosure would be more harmful than the continued tenure by silent consent of a convicted pander and bootlegger identified by the Worcester police as a common local racketeer, in high union office, Mr. Kingsley gave a sidelong answer. He then irrelevantly reproached your correspondent for resigning from the newspaper guild when it became a Trojan horse of the New York and California Communists, instead of remaining in the organization to fight them.

In this he overlooked the fact that these dispatches were the first to identify the guild Communists and to oppose them as such while the rest of the opposition was intimidated by the term "Red-baiter" and preferred to call them "liberals" or "radicals" and to pretend that communism later recognized as such was not an issue.

This phase of the discussion led nowhere but Mr. Kingsley "personally," nevertheless remained adamant on the proposition that to expose and thus depose an underworld character risen to power in a union would hurt the workers more than the racketeer could if suffered to operate unchallenged.

Adding this all up, you find another reason why congress is about to take labor relations out of the hands of the New Deal ideologists and perform a delousing operation in the interests of the rank and file and the whole people of the U. S. A.

Jackpot Deferred.

"WHEN the lights go on again," to borrow a parase that's already been borrowed to make a hit song title, a lot of lads in the entertainment world who were within checkbook distance of the jackpot will have to start all over again with their fans.

World war II didn't grant any special exemptions or privileges to the nation's entertainers. The families of the boys in the theater and sports world are suffering the same economic dislocations as the folks who watch their heroes from the balcony or bleachers. And to make matters just a little bit tougher, the rising boys in entertainment spheres will have to start all over again in the most highly competitive business in the world.

Take Danny Kaye. You may as well, because Uncle Sam's taking him after he finishes his first movie. Until Danny went into the nitery known as La Martinique about three years ago, he was just another good performer waiting for the [illegible] that would get him recognition. He got it in La Martinique and followed it up with his [illegible] role in "Lady In the Dark." His starring [illegible] in "Let's Face It" didn't make Danny any better than he'd been for years. It just gave him the break, after he had endured years in the Borscht Circuit of the Catskills and the hybrid vaudeville offered in the provinces of China, Japan and In[illegible]. And if Danny's technique is [illegible] history as a performer isn't. Like all the others, Danny went into [illegible] while awaiting recognition. Now that it has finally come into the clear he [illegible] is a candidate for the army of the United States.

For Danny Kaye, like lots of others in show business, success has been achieved but the jackpot has been deferred for the duration.

By a coincidence La Martinique happens to figure largely in the history of three other comedians whose careers have been temporarily abbreviated by Mr. Schicklegruber's activities.

They're Jackie Miles, who opened there for his last appearance for the duration last week; John Buckmaster, whose engagement was cut short by a call from the army air corps, and Johnny Morgan, who went down to the induction center on Monday for a "routine questioning" and hasn't returned since.

Each of them was on the threshold of the big money that comes with stardom. For each of them the jackpot has been deferred for the duration.

Their stories are typical, not exceptional, of the history of the entertainment world's contribution to the war effort.

MARINES QUELL RIOTING NEGRO, WHITE TROOPS

Break Up Fights Among 350 At Vallejo, Cal., Without Firing a Shot.

(By United Press)

VALLEJO, Cal. — Marines armed with submachine guns dispersed a riotous crowd of 350 Negro and white service men and some civilians early today in Vallejo's Barbary Coast area near the entrance to the Mare Island ferry.

It was the third such incident in less than three months among soldiers and sailors here. Last Dec. 28, marines and shore patrolmen fired into a crowd of Negro and white sailors, wounding two Negro navy cooks.

The demonstration today started after midnight, when all California bars must close.

Police Chief Earl Dierking said a Negro shore patrol officer had attempted to put an intoxicated white sailor into a taxi. The sailor refused to enter the machine, he said. Navy police and the white sailor exchanged blows, Dierking said, and a large crowd poured into the street from the 200 bars in the area, taking up the fight.

Dierking said at least 350 persons, mostly soldiers, sailors and marines, had gathered and that "a large part of them" had engaged in the fighting.

The shore patrol and Vallejo police sent out a riot call, and all civilian officers were ordered on duty. The crowd, Dierking said, was too large for the civilian and military police to handle.

Twenty marines armed with submachine guns arrived and stopped the riot without firing.

Shore patrol and military police took three men into custody, but Vallejo police made no arrests. Police said four Negro sailors at a bus depot nearby quarreled and in the following free-for-all, one was stabbed. He was taken to a naval hospital, police said.

BETTER SHOWING

Parking Meter Receipts Up Over January.

February parking meter receipts increased over January despite a predicted slump seen as resulting from a more severe effect of gasoline rationing, the report of L. L. Kochenderfer, inspector, to Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolf, showed today.

Although February has fewer days than any other month receipts were $2,710.63 as compared to $2,655.79 in January. However, the tire and fuel rationing program brought a decided drop from the February, 1942, total of $3,371.58.

The report shows a collection of $1,353.28 in pennies, $1,377.75 in nickels and $9.60 in dimes. The heavy penny collection indicates brief shopping periods, observers conclude, one penny entitling a motorist to 12 minutes of parking. The daily collection averaged $124.57 with a meter average of 30 cents. Last year the daily average in February was $140.60.

HONOR BUCYRUS PLANT EMPLOYE

30,000th General Electric Employe Enters Service

BUCYRUS—Ceremonies honoring the 30,000th General Electric company employe to enter the nation's armed forces were conducted Friday afternoon by the 250 employes of the Bucyrus General Electric plant for James M. Rindfuss, 19, who was inducted into the navy.

Rindfuss, father of a 10-week-old baby, was employed in the Bucyrus General Electric lamp works. His wife is a former employe of the fluorescent light plant in Bucyrus.

General Electric employes were joined by city officials and army officers from Camp Millard at Bucyrus in a salute to Rindfuss. More than 17 per cent of General Electric workers have entered some form of government service, company officials said.

ASKS DELAY ON FORGIVING TAX

Treasury to Send Request to House Panel Monday; Current Payment Plan Drafted.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—With a collection-at-the-source tax program virtually completed, the house ways and means committee on Monday will be asked to defer the question of forgiving 1942 tax liabilities until the treasury submits its proposals for raising additional revenue later this year.

Rep. Knutson of Minnesota, a ranking Republican on the committee, announced today that he would make a motion to start the collections as proposed, but delay the question of forgiveness "until we can find out how much additional money we are expected to raise."

The collection-at-the-source bill was formulated by a subcommittee and announced in full late yesterday. It provides:

1. That a 20 per cent levy, after exemptions of $28 a week for married persons, $11 for single and $8 for each dependent, will be deducted weekly from paychecks, soldiers, domestics and farm hands excepted.

2. The farmers pay two-thirds of their tax liability before the end of each year, the balance the following March 15.

3. That all other persons, including soldiers, domestics and farm hands, pay quarterly, with the return (on an estimated basis) to be filed and paid not later than one month after the end of each quarter during the year.

LEARN OF DEATH

Friends of C. K. McClane Get Word of His Demise.

Friends of Christian Kendig McClane, 85, former Mansfielder, today had learned of his death Jan 2 in Los Angeles, Calif., where he had lived since he left Mansfield in 1933.

Native of Wayne county, Mr. McClane passed most of his life in Mansfield where he was employed as a brakeman for the Erie and Pennsylvania railroads and later as a freight and passenger conductor for the Pennsylvania lines. He retired in 1927.

Surviving are the widow, the former Mary Alice Selby Schwingel of Mansfield; a son, Guy, and a daughter, Mrs. Helen Kathleen Rudd, both of Cleveland.

I want to thank the teacher for what she has taught us about the different vitamins and the less expensive foods we can prepare to keep our bodies fit while we are in this war. We must put forth every effort to help our boys and country win."

An honest Mansfield man turned in a bunch of keys at a postoffice window yesterday afternoon "If anybody calls for these, I found them on the floor out here," he told the clerk in charge. About an hour later the same man rushed madly back to the window. "have you still got those keys?" he queried. Assured they did have, he said simply "they're mine," he took the keys and left with postal clerks bewildered.

Father of Four Accused on Non-Support Charge.

Arrested last night by Deputy Sheriff C. C. Gongwer on a non-support charge, Kenneth Shrader, 29, of 65 Scott street, was to go before Judge Stuart H. Cramer in county juvenile court today. Shrader, who has been in court before, is accused of failing to support his four children, ranging in age from two to eight years.

Charged with neglect, Mrs. Viola Solon, 31, of 61 Vale avenue, yesterday was sentenced to 60 days in the county jail by Judge Cramer who suspended the sentence on the condition that she care for her three children.

TACKLES TANGLE OVER MANPOWER

Truman Committee Seeks Plan For Support of 11 Million In Armed Forces.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The senate Truman committee today moved into the muddled congressional squabble over manpower in an effort to develop a comprehensive program for the support of armed forces of 11,000,000 men.

Top-flight industrialists, such as Shipbuilder Henry J. Kaiser, and Lieut. Gen. William S. Knudsen as well as War Production Chairman Donald M. Nelson, Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt and other high government officials will be summoned before the committee.

"We will start on Monday with the premise that the armed forces will be 11,000,000 men and we will try to find out how best to utilize labor to support them," a committee official explained.

The investigation program will embrace:

1. Lengthening of work-week in war industries.

2. Cures for absenteeism, increasing production per worker and training of supervisors and personnel.

3. Restrictions necessary on civilian industry, and how to shift workers into war industries.

4. Reasons for fine productive records of some war plants and near failures in others.

5. Whether compulsory labor draft is necessary.

The Truman committee, it was indicated, decided to go deeply into the manpower question because of assaults on the "work or fight" policy of Manpower Commissioner McNutt and cross-activities of other committees both in senate and house.

RITES SUNDAY

Huron County Farmer Dies After Heart Attack.

NEW LONDON—Funeral services will be conducted Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at the Sackett funeral home for Perry C. Lilly, 82, Huron county farmer, who died unexpectedly Friday morning, after suffering a heart attack at his home.

Services will be in charge of the Masonic lodge of New London with Rev. W. H. Mitchell, pastor of the Methodist church, assisting. Burial will be in the Day cemetery east of New London.

Mr. Lilly was born in a log cabin on the farm where he died and passed his entire life on the same farm. About two months ago he was honored by the New London Masons for 50 years of membership in the lodge.

One sister, Miss Edith Lilly of near New London survives.

BOTH PARTIES AROUSED OVER 4TH TERM TALK

'No Time For Politics,' Cry After Guffey Plugs For FDR on Senate Floor.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A suggestion by Senator Guffey (D., Pa.) that no tradition bars a fourth term for President Roosevelt if the American people want to keep him in office aroused from both Democratic and Republican Senators today the protest that this is no time to talk politics.

Guffey told the senate yesterday in a prepared speech reviewing Mr. Roosevelt's accomplishments during 10 years in the White House that the American people "judge our presidents by what they do and what they are, keep them and get rid of them to suit ourselves, not to suit the convenience of party ambition or politics as usual."

Senator Brooks (R., Ill.) told reporters he interpreted Guffey's statement that there is "no American tradition which says a good president cannot serve four terms in the White House" as further evidence that some Democrats were trying to inject politics into the war effort.

"The New Dealers are constantly injecting politics into the war situation and blaming the other fellow for doing it," he declared.

"Senator Lucas (D., Ill.), a longtime supporter of the president's policies, said he thought it was no time for either Democrats or Republicans to be talking about politics. The Republicans are just as active in politics as the Democrats, he asserted.

Senator Van Nuys (D., Ind.) disagreed with Guffey on the question of tradition and said he didn't think the American people were or should be interested in politics when the war was in a critical stage. Senator Taft (R., Ohio) said political campaigns should be brief in wartime, but added he had no doubt that if the war still was going on in 1944, Mr. Roosevelt would be a candidate for re-election.

"If he is the Democratic nominee, it will be a close and hard fight, but I think the Republican nominee will win," he said.

DIES IN TEXAS

Howard L. Hartwig, Serving In Maritime Service, Dead.

Howard Leroy Hartwig, 48, Mansfield, who has been in the maritime service on the Gulf of Mexico, died unexpectedly Friday at Port Arthur, Texas.

A message to his mother, Mrs. Bertha Hartwig, Mansfield, said he was found dead but gave no details as to the cause of death.

Born in Mansfield Aug. 14, 1894, Mr. Hartwig was in the navy during the first World war and during recent years had been with the U. S. maritime service.

The body will be brought to the Finefrock funeral home. Funeral arrangements had not been completed today.

Surviving are his widow, the mother, four brothers, Walter, Leo, and Russell of Mansfield and Arthur of Nahunta, Ga., and two sisters, Miss Irene L. Hartwig of Mansfield and Mrs. Edward Neymyer of Toledo.

HEART ATTACK CAUSES DEATH

Mrs. Wilhelmina Petersen, 74, died of a heart attack Friday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McLelland, 119 Blymyer avenue.

Mrs. Petersen was born Dec. 23, 1868, in Copenhagen, Denmark. She came to the United States 50 years ago, and came to Mansfield eight years ago from Minneapolis with the McLelland family. She is survived by two sons in Minneapolis and a daughter in Nova Scotia.

The Finefrock funeral home will send the body to Minneapolis for services and burial.

in the Philippines Feb. 17, 1941, being reported missing in June of the following year.

Meanwhile Mr. and Mrs. Urban Peter of nearby Loudonville, were more certain today that their son, Ervin, 19, reported "missing in action" since May, 1942, was still alive, following two more letters from persons who heard the boy's short wave message Tuesday telling that he was a prisoner of the Japanese in Tokyo.

Word was received from Howard Watzer of Sammoteo, Calif., and Mrs. H. E. Edge, Winslow, Ariz., telling the youths parents of the message.

Mrs. Edge said she was listening to the "American Prisoners Information Hour" and heard the boy's plea to contact his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter first learned of the news yesterday in a letter from J. A. Bahl, Chicago. Bahl said the message read:

"I'm Ervin Eugene Peter, 19, and if anyone hears this, please send word to my mother in Loudonville.

He said: "Dear Mom, I am safe and well, and I am a prisoner in Tokyo, Japan, and I thought I could ease your aching heart, and hope our family circle will be together again soon."

The youth's parents are trying to establish contact with the boy through the Loudonville Red Cross chapter.

hours. Tremendous explosions were heard in the Dunkirk area. The force of the attack was indicated by the fact that buildings shook and windows rattled in southeast English coast towns.

An hour after the German stations were silenced, Danish stations went off the air.

The night attack followed daylight sweeps by Spitfires and Typhoons of the fighter command. They ranged over the Dutch coast, sinking two German torpedo boats and heavily damaging two others.

and three of their number shot down.

Douglas attack planes opened the offensive with low-level strafing and bombing attacks on airdromes and troop positions near the coast. Then Beaufighters joined other Douglases in a concentrated raid on the dispersal bays at Malahang airdrome and adjacent targets.

Allied long-range fighters completed the final annihilation of the few Japanese who escaped alive after MacArthur's air force sank 10 warships and 12 transports in the Bismarck sea.

Sweeping over Huon gulf, Allied Billy Mitchell bombers and Beaufighters methodically machine-gunned Japanese sailors and troops attempting to reach shore in lifeboats, barges and rafts and made certain that none of the 22 large vessels remained on the surface.

One plane found two barges and destroyed both with all aboard, while another sank four barges. Nearly all the craft were 20 to 75 miles from land, and only one fired back at the attackers.

Returning pilots reported much debris and wide oil slicks marking the sinking of the enemy's main ships. They said some of the Japanese warships carried log rafts bound together with ropes, presumably for use in landings.

The Church Invites You

"We shall need all our spiritual resources to sustain us in the days to come," wrote President Roosevelt in a letter commending Religious Education Week. The statement typifies the great and growing body of conviction that religious faith is fundamental to the struggle for world order. The churches have a great responsibility to preach and to practice a deeper faith in the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

The fact is that religion is our first defense; hence, every man, woman, and child needs to be identified with the church. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

The Supreme Council of the Knights of Columbus has subscribed $3,000 for the expenses of the nation-wide radio program, "The Catholic hour."

The Nazis-controlled government of Czechoslovakia has demanded that the Old Testament be barred from Czech schools and Bible classes.

The Hon. Charles P. Taft, assistant co-ordinator, Federal Security agency, says that only about five per cent of the men in the army are a problem because of drinking, adding that the co-operation given to his agency by the churches in army camp communities had been the outstanding feature of its effects to provide a wholesome environment for the armed forces. The Hon. Francis B. Sayre, high commissioner to the Philippines, made it unmistakably clear that he had no hope for a just and durable peace and a better world for all apart from the dominance in the world of the Christian spirit and way of life.

The Solomon Islands are frequently in the news dispatches lately because of the fierce fighting there between the Americans and the Japanese. It is interesting to learn from the "Bible Society Record" that these islands contain 17,000 square miles and have a population of 200,000. "Most of them are mountainous and deeply wooded. They are separated from one another by deep, still waterways, which present to the traveler a picture of enchanting beauty. There are 24 languages spoken by the inhabitants and into each of these some part of the Bible has been translated. Six languages have the entire New Testament. The first three missionaries who went there were massacred.—The Gospel Minister.

The Right Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, presiding bishop of the Episcopal church, is the new president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Bishop Tucker succeeds Dr. Luther A. Weigle of Yale university and will hold office for two years. This is the first time a president of the Council has come from the Episcopal communion. By action of its general convention in 1940 the Episcopal church became a full-fledged member of the council. It is of interest to note that in England, the British Council of Churches is also headed by the top-ranking official of the Episcopal church, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Our Preacher Says

© D. Carl Yoder

The common question asked about a friend, "How is he getting along?" is generally answered by a statement relative to his position in earning a livelihood and to the salary he makes. Success is not the abundance of means but of manhood. True wealth is not what my estate amounts to, but what I amount to.

WIT AND WISDOM

"Uncle Joe," said Albert Edward Wiggam, the author, meeting an old Negro who was always cheerful in spite of having had more than his share of life's trouble, "how have you managed to remain so cheerful and calm?"

"Well, I'll tell you," replied Uncle Joe. "I'se jus' learned to co-operate wid de inevitable."

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, MARCH 6, 1943.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and make sure that you have enough gas to get there and back.

It is now proposed that the can-can dance be revived as interpretive of the Spirit of Ration Book No. 2.

A Baltimore citizen reports the disappearance of his wife—with a pair of his shoes she had taken to be repaired—and he is very anxious to learn what happened to the shoes.

Mansfield's First Dimout Tests

MANSFIELD'S first experience with dimout procedure will come next week, starting Monday night and concluding Thursday night—with a 15-minute dimout effective in each of the city's four sections marked by the Main street and Park avenue bounds.

These sectional dimout tests, under direction of the civilian defense committee, will be preliminary to a city-wide dimout scheduled for Thursday night, March 18, and are intended to acquaint residents with requirements if the time should come for an actual emergency blackout—which must be regarded as possible, if not probable.

In this test street lights will be left on and industries engaged in war production will not be affected, as these are under quick control in the event of danger.

During the dimout period assigned to each section of the city, however, it is asked that lights be extinguished in all homes, offices and places of business.

What is termed a "satisfactory" blackout test was conducted in 30 northern Ohio counties Thursday night and the Mansfield experiments will lead to local readiness to participate in a state-wide blackout test being planned for next month.

Crippled Children's 'Uncle Bill'

SELDOM does announcement of a man's retirement from a position in which he has served for many years occasion such universal community regret as does that of William C. Mead's decision to give up his post as district manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas company.

Entirely aside from the capable and conscientious performance of the duties of his position, Mr. Mead has filled the years of his residence in Mansfield with so many worthwhile activities that he has long been recognized as a valuable community asset in the important fields of goodwill building, civic advancement and humanitarian service.

His local work in behalf of crippled children led naturally to his selection on the board of directors of the state society for crippled children and in this activity he finds many opportunities to help unfortunate children to physical betterment.

Always radiating a spirit of friendliness which makes it easy for all who know him to call him "Bill," the children of Sunshine school invariably expand this to the title of "Uncle Bill," and his interest in them, and his concern for their welfare through the years, fully justifies this affectionate appellation.

There will be hope, and prayers, that rest from active duties and recuperation in pleasant home surroundings, will bring improvement in the eye condition that has been troublesome for the past several years, and that "Bill" will soon be able to resume many of the self-imposed civic activities with which he has heretofore been prominently identified.

Buying Seeds for Victory Gardens

THE RUSH to buy garden seeds these days is hardly exceeded by that to buy clothes. Men buy seeds, and children, too, as well as the women who have been doing the frenzied garment purchasing. Vegetable seed sales, it is said in some large cities, are five or six times those of last year.

Buyers, it seems, are choosing seeds of many varieties in small quantities. In other words, they are amateurs, preparing to experiment, hoping that some, at least, of their efforts will be rewarded. Onions, spinach, lettuce, peppers, Swiss chard, radishes and cabbage are high in present favor.

People in congested districts, who live in apartments without any back yards, are getting ready to plant in flower boxes at their windows, and to make gardens on their roofs. The early Quebec French, who kept a few forlorn little pots of chives and other salad greens growing in their basements in the cold months, and got an early start with their lettuce and radishes that way in the spring, had nothing on modern Americans for ingenuity in gardening.

Hoover's Post-War Longevity Record

FORMER PRESIDENT HOOVER has now been out of office ten years. The average for all our presidents is 11, but since the last war it has dropped considerably. Woodrow Wilson, a sick man during his last 18 months of office, lived but three years after his retirement. Calvin Coolidge, without an eventful administration to tire him out, died four years after leaving office. Hoover, at 69, has made a post-war record.

He would have to live 15 years more to tie John Adams' record of 25 years as an ex-president. Much useful service can still be expected from him.

'Featherbed' Jobs On Railroads Explained

ONE PHASE of the nation's manpower problem—the railroads' cry for 168,000 more workers—is analyzed in a condensation from Barron's in the March issue of Reader's Digest. The conclusion reached by two authors of this article, after a nationwide survey, is that "there is a shortage, not of men but of hours worked." Ancient "featherbed" restrictions imposed by the brotherhoods, and later make-work rules decreed by the National Railroad Adjustment Board, keep tens of thousands of key railroadmen from working more than two days a week.

It was this state of affairs, the article notes, that led the McCook, Neb., selective service board to refuse the deferment of seven operating railroad employes, despite frantic protests by railroad management.

The article cites a number of examples of how railroad work is spread on a depression basis while family men in other fields are ordered to abandon their careers and get into war work or fight.

By brotherhood rules, engineers and firemen are limited to 4,800 miles a month in passenger service and 3,800 miles a month in freight service. This dates back to railroading's early days, when 100 miles was rated a good day's work. Now the Rock Island's Rocket travels 161 miles between Peoria and Chicago in 160 minutes. The round trip, including the layover at Peoria, consumes seven and a half hours. For five hours and twenty minutes of actual running time, the engineer gets three and one-fifth days' pay, plus an additional two-fifths of a day's pay for "turning his train around." Furthermore, all members of the train crew accumulate so much mileage that union rules make them kill nearly two days before operating the train again.

The article also cites other cases. The crew in the cab of the B. & O.'s Royal Blue between New York and Washington may work only one day in three. On the Southern Pacific's Los Angeles-San Francisco Daylight, the engine crew is permitted to make only 12 runs a month.

On the Santa Fe's Super Chief, the Milwaukee's Hiawatha, and the Union Pacific's Streamliner, if engineers were allowed to work 48 hours a week for a month, they would earn $2,000 each and they would have to lay off four months to catch up with their mileage limitation.

Many railroadmen questioned by the writers of the article said they'd like to work every day for the duration. Railroad executives said they'd be perfectly willing to let engineers earn $1,000 a month or more by taking out trains six days a week. The executives said they don't care how much the men make. The cost to the railroads is the same in any case, whether it is paid to one man or three.

Striking-Power of Allies Growing

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

THE DISASTROUS DEFEAT suffered by the Japs on the equatorial waters of the Bismarck sea is a major triumph for the Allies, but what impresses me even more than the immediate victory is this evidence of the terrific striking-power we are piling up against the enemy.

Maybe I'm especially susceptible to this line of thought just now because I've seen a similar accumulation of Allied might during my recent tour of the war zones from Britain to the Orient. Still, taking the long view the demonstration of rapidly increasing strength in the various theaters bespeaks excellent progress toward final success.

This idea would seem to fit well in general with Under Secretary of War Patterson's report of a mounting output of armament and munitions, including 5,500 warplanes last month. That production is a tremendous victory in itself.

Another point which stands out in this historic Pacific battle is the fact this is a victory of the air over the sea. That's vastly important, for the war against Japan is of such geographical nature that Allied air power is bound to play a great role in knocking her out.

We shall see the proof when we finally are able to concentrate huge fleets of bombers over the Mikado's own Tokyo.

Taking the close view of the Bismarck engagement, it would seem to ensure dominations of the Southwest Pacific by the United Nations. That means, among other things, if there was any threat of Jap invasion of Australia, it's nothing to worry about now.

THE fast-growing Allied strength displayed in this remarkable battle also should afford encouragement to the Chinese, who have waited so patiently and bravely for aid in a big way. I don't mean they will take this as presaging any grand offensive in the immediate future.

My observation in Chungking was the Chinese finally had recognized reluctantly the Allies weren't likely to make an all-out drive against the Japanese until Hitler had been further ironed out. Still, this piling up of Allied power is heartening.

That's important too, for the Chinese are having a terribly hard time and they have no delusions about the great task before them.

We should recognize, as do the Chinese, that there's a hugs Jap army to be disposed of in China. This means it either must be annihilated on the battlefield, or forced to capitulate because the mother country has been compelled to surrender, and it would be the height of folly for us to bank on the latter contingency.

Now a Japanese army is like no other in the world. Give a Jap a rifle and some ammunition and throw him ashore in a strange country, and he will pretty well take care of himself. He will dig himself into a hole like a rat, and live off the land.

Thus even under adverse circumstances the Japanese will hold out, as we have seen them do, until they literally are annihilated. And that's the problem facing the Chinese when they start their big offensive. However, it's my understanding that they want to do this man-power job in their land themselves, although they will have to be equipped by the Allies.

The Chinese have been expecting the opening move would be for the Allies to invade Burma across the Bay of Bengal from India in order to oust the Japs and reopen the Burma road so supplies could start pouring into China.

That's the logical program as they see it now. Of course, it wouldn't be surprising if another United Nations operation started simultaneously from the southwest Pacific.

Listen World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Be Ready NOW!

MIGHTY uncomfortable times. Something different every day. Something added . . . something taken away. You never can tell what it will be, but of this you can be sure. It will be a change. Some change you haven't anticipated and won't like.

And it will be a sudden change. There's no time any more for slow and leisurely adjustments. The scene shifts overnight. The pleasant, leisurely ways we've followed for years whirl and are gone by dawn. And, with the first newspaper column or broadcast, we face a new world with endless new demands. New demands in your home, in your office, in your social relationships. New demands in your refrigerator . . . in your bureau drawer.

So at first you're mad. Then you're resigned. Then you say to yourself – "Well, I'll be ready when it comes."

Stop kidding yourself, partner. If you're ever going to be ready, you'll have to start N-O-W. The New Order isn't coming. It has come! And if you're ever going to be part of it, you'll have to step into your fighting boots and get going pronto. For there's no more time to Get Ready. We're as ready as we ever will be. And if we can't fall in line TODAY, we're liquidated. For keeps.

Remember what a fuss we used to make over events twenty, thirty, forty years ago? How we spent years filling our hope chests . . . taking Correspondence Courses . . . planning our futures. What an immense time we spent loafing around, discussing The Important Things of Life.

Time was endless then. So was Talk. The slightest change in our routine called for days of conversation and argument. All the neighbors dropping in. You spent whole days packing a trunk. The entire town turned out if you took a trip to New York. You "Had To Be Ready" before you could commit yourself to any project.

But those days have gone – and thank God they've gone – forever. Now, you're ready always. Or you're out of luck.

Mind a splotch of personal data? You're in for it anyway. Life being what it is, it probably fits your experience as well as mine. So, perhaps, it'll help. For the last two years I've been taking the breaks. Busted my profile in most of its important angles. Lay for months in something that looked like a cross between a life saver and a marshmallow frosting. So, if you've been through it yourself, as you probably have, chances are you'll know what happens.

First you're O-O-Oh so brave and chipper. Then the snap begins to go out of you. You lie looking out of the window . . . looking out of the window . . . looking . . . looking. . . . And the weeks grow into months . . . and the months grow into years. And your heart turns into a hopeless lump within your chest.

Well – it was getting like that with me. All the years adding up to just one thing. USELESS . . . USELESS . . . USELESS. Nothing but memories to live on. The dead boy. The dead years. Limp fingers that could no longer hit the keys.

Until one day, my boss took a hand. Arranged, without even asking me, that I should undertake a new brand of work. A challenge that would take all I had. Didn't ask me "please." Didn't ask me if I was ready. Just dumped it into my lap.

AND LEFT ME TO LOVE IT OR LEAVE IT.

Was I ready? Of course I wasn't. I was sick . . . behind in my regular work . . . completely uninterested. I didn't know how I could possibly do it. But it was there – and no questions to be asked. So I took it. And tonight I'm back on the swing shift.

So perhaps you're needing the same shove which I and thousands of others are needing today. Wondering if you're ready? Feeling you never can be? Quit it! There's no use waiting to be ready. You're as ready now as you'll ever be. Ready to take the hurdles. Ready to shift your dreams. Ready to take the risks as they come – knowing always that they'll make for a bigger and better break—if you've the courage and eagerness to grasp them.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Congress Dallies With Tax Plans But Mid-March Payment Stands

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

CONGRESSMEN themselves, as well as the folks back home, were grumbling over the inability of the house ways and means committee to do something about a pay-as-you-earn tax program. The committee had mulled over the Ruml plan for skipping a year's taxes and putting collections on a current basis, then turned it down on a strict party vote—15 Democrats against 10 Republicans.

On Capitol Hill, there was some talk of circulating a petition to discharge committee and bring the problem directly to the floor of the house. But veteran members counseled against such a breach of legislative etiquette.

Then a house subcommittee took over, dug in and came up a few days later with a proposal that failed to cover all the ground, but was better than none at all.

If the subcommittee's plan, which faced many a hurdle before becoming law, went into effect it would cover approximately 31,000,000 taxpayers, provide for a 20 per cent withholding tax on all wages and salaries, beginning July 1.

Included would be a 3 per cent levy on wages and salaries above exemptions of $624—the present Victory Tax exemption—and 17 per cent on wages and salaries above the regular income tax exemptions ($500 single, $1,200 for married persons, $350 for each dependent). A 10 per cent deduction would be allowed to cover normal deductible items—charity, state and local taxes, etc.

The subcommittee did not answer the question of how much, if any, of last year's taxes would be forgiven, made it clear that the first two installments of 1942's tax would be payable as usual, March 15 and June 15.

Never-say-die backers of the Ruml plan answered the subcommittee's action with a "substitute Ruml" proposal, which would incorporate both the withholding tax and the skip-a-year feature.

The measure, proposed by Kansas' Rep. Carlson, one of the original Ruml supporters, would go into effect July 1, would provide for slightly smaller deductions than the subcommittee's plan, would skip 1942 taxes, except where 1942 income was greater than that of 1943. In that case, the greater tax would be payable.

At Home

Fourth Term Talk.

The Republicans had a new name and a new face on their presidential campaign buttons in 1932, 1936 and 1940 but the Democratic lapels have shown only three R's—for Roosevelt. During the week, the 10th anniversary of President Roosevelt's first inauguration, the candidates and their supporters began in earnest to sit for campaign button portraits.

The biggest question of all, as it was in 1939-40, was—is and will be—will the president make it four R's for the Democrats? He wasn't talking, as he didn't talk in 1939-40. Then it was not until the Democratic delegates assembled that Roosevelt sent word he would accept the convention's draft and run for a third, precedent-breaking term.

Republicans, who figured their 1942 election showing a good omen for 1944, busied themselves with strengthening state organizations.

Soldiers Wear Out.

Into the vocabulary of selective service during the week went a million-manpower word: Attrition.

They figured it out like this: To maintain an armed force of 11,000,000 men, it will be necessary to put 12,000,000 on the service rolls, the extra million going for non-combat wear and tear, depreciation, or as the army says, attrition.

In peace time, reported Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, attrition in the ranks amounts to one-half of one per cent a month. Right now, the armed services are discharging about 1,000 non-battle casualties a week.

No. 1 reason for this rate of attrition, Hershey said, is some soldiers' development of psychoneurosis. He added to this, duodenal ulcers, "another phase of psychoneurosis, because it is a question of fear complex and overexcited adrenalin gland, which drains your system and throws it out of gear."

Seamen Want Action.

While the French battleship Richelieu lies in Brooklyn Navy Yard being repaired so she can go to sea with Allied fleets, her sailors are leaving their posts with impunity. But none have been shot, nor do their officers seem greatly disturbed.

For these seamen who go over the sides of the Richelieu, Le Fantasque and other French warships that came from Dakar to drydocks in American ports, are deserting at the rate of 14 a day—to fight again for France. Fighting French officials said the seamen are being helped along to Canada, thence to England to enlist in the DeGaullist forces.

Richelieu officers said no measures were being taken to restrain the men.

States War Aim.

For those still looking for American war aims, Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox offered one realistic look-at-the-future during the week: The complete, permanent wreckage of the Japanese navy.

Knox told a senate committee, "We'll utterly destroy the Japanese fleet" before the war is over, and "probably impose upon her that she'll never have another fleet. She has exhibited that she is not qualified to have one."

Abroad

Lumps for the Luftwaffe.

In Berlin, they were celebrating "Luftwaffe Day," an observance to mark the rise of an air force that had pulverized Poland, had contributed to the fall of France, had dealt staggering blows to English cities and towns in the Battle of Britain.

But the celebration, like the ceremonies on Jan. 30 marking the 10th anniversary of Adolf Hitler's ascension to the chancellorship, were interrupted suddenly. Out of the dark skies and into the glare of searchlights rode an armada of British bombers, Lancasters and Stirlings fat with their loads of two and four-ton block busters.

The devastation that followed was the worst from the air in Berlin's history. Nine hundred tons of demolition and fire bombs poured down, setting huge blazes in the capital's famed Unter Den Linden and causing at least 200 deaths, by German count.

Russians Move Ahead.

The major objective to fall to the Russians this week was the German stronghold of Rzhev. The Germans marched out with the usual announcement that it had been evacuated "according to plan."

The reports pointed up two facts: That General Timoshenko still is among the top-drawer army commanders, and that the Russians still have strong striking power and are able to take advantage of the flexibility of the long front.

Fascist Fadeout.

To the unexplained chain of events in Italy, starting with Mussolini's ouster of his son-in-law as foreign minister and the subsequent shakeup of the cabinet and diplomatic corps, was added another link during the week as Il Duce ordered the withdrawal of his Eighth army from the bloody battlefields of Russia.

The Italians—10 divisions numbering from 120,000 to 150,000 men—were ordered home for rest, and "to have their rank refilled." London analysts who heard the Rome broadcast of the event noted Mussolini's admission that Italy had suffered serious losses in Italy, believed the action was based on: (1) Il Duce's fears of an Allied invasion at home; (2) The possibility that the Italians have been so cut up on the Russian front that the remaining forces have become unfit for anything but garrison duty.

Jap Convoy Destroyed.

One day last week reconnaissance planes from Allied headquarters in Australia sighted a Japanese convoy steaming from New Britain island toward New Guinea. Said the communique from Gen. MacArthur's desk: "The Allied air force is preparing to attack as soon as weather permits."

A few days later weather permitted, and MacArthur's steadily-strengthening air force picked off the entire convoy of 22 ships and wiped out, "almost to a man," the 15,000 Japanese warriors headed toward the battlefields of New Guinea.

Thus, temporarily at least, appeared to have ended the latest Japanese attempt to renew heavy fighting in the New Guinea area.

Quotes

Donald M. Nelson, WPB chairman: The youth of the nation are doing a grand job in the fighting forces, and I think today the one question we have got to ask ourselves is: Are we going to be worthy of those boys who are out there fighting?

Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippines: Do not despair, for your liberation is certain. Above all, you must continue to have faith in America, which has kept faith with every nation, and especially with us.

In Short

Circulated: The first of the Treasury's new wartime pennies, strip steel coated with zinc.

Ordered: By the War Manpower Commission, 48-hour work week for the nation's lumber industry and all metal mining, excepting iron.

Eliminated: By WPB, 40 per cent of the sizes of paper bags now manufactured, to save 80,000 tons of wood pulp a year, the use of 4,000 freight cars.

Reversed: By the U. S. Supreme Court, the conviction of Publicist George Sylvester Viereck on charges of failing to give full information on his alleged activities as a Nazi agent in this country.

Died: Sarah Louise Arnold, 84, former national president of the Girl Scouts, at Boston; Steve Vasilakos, 58, widely-known "White House corner" peanut vendor, after illness of several months.

Farmer's Diary

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

FARMING vs. CULTURE

I GUESS, if you could," laughed a school man to me the other day, "you'd have every school boy in United States make a study of farming!"

I thought a minute before I answered—"Yes, every school boy—and girl—in the world."

He was amazed. "I knew you were radical," he said, "but I didn't dream it was as bad as all that! So you'd make every boy a farmer!"

"That's wasn't what I said. Not every boy can be a farmer—but I'd not unmake those who prefer to live by the land. And if fundamental agriculture was a required part of every person's early training, it would make a better world and give every man a wholesome respect for the friendly earth that feeds and clothes him – that gives him the only life he knows."

He was frankly nonplussed as he thought that over. "But farming isn't cultural—you can't believe that? Farming is feeding and fattening animals and managing the machinery to till and harvest the land. It's a deadly grind of heavy muscular chores, with little prospect of more than a livelihood in return."

"It's a way of life as old as mankind," I remarked. "It's the bubbling fountain from which music and poetry and great literature have come forth. It's a part of the parables and of the Psalms. It's the source of homely proverbs that men of character may live by. It is interlocked with all the sciences—biology, chemistry, botany, physics, medicine, astronomy. Geography determines it – history is determined by it. Sociology and politics are outgrowths of it. Commerce depends upon it . . ." I stopped for breath.

"Whew!" said he, "I'm afraid I've started something."

"It's the language every people understands. It adapts itself to every kind of soil and climate. Why, just yesterday, I learned of a new school of tropic agriculture that is established in Honduras, by United Fruit company, to train select young men how to grow such necessities as rubber, abaca (for fiber rope) rotenone, castor oil and other oils that will grow in Middle America."

"Middle America?"

"Yes – that's the new geographic word for those ten North American countries south of Texas. Their climate is suitable for growing many things that we have shipped heretofore from the Far East."

"Thanks,—Middle America—I'll remember that. Come again,—we'll talk some more."

Alone, I picked up the dictionary and looked for "culture" . . . "Cultivation, tillage; enlightenment and discipline acquired by mental and moral training."

I grinned. Webster backs me up!

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I don't think you need worry much about that," Katharine said ryly. "Have you ever known the hief to be late?"

"No, I haven't" I said. Then I ook up a magazine and buried myself in it until my father's knock oused me.

"Just three minutes of 8," Katharine murmured as I went to the oor.

"The federal man didn't call." My father's inflection made his entence declarative in stead of interrogative.

"No one called," I answered, nd he took a chair near the telehone, saying, "They're usually ight on the dot."

Just a second before 8 the telehone bell rang and my father ook the telephone from its cradle nd spoke into it, while Katharine nd I breathlessly followed the ne-sided conversation.

Cryptic Conversation.

"This is Spencer," my father aid. "Who is this? Hagner? ood! Now listen carefully. You now that book which was taken rom the library—that important ne of which we could find no race?"

Katharine's eyes met mine in mazement. A child could have old that "book" was a camouage, and if Milner was listening, s my father had planned, he ould believe the conversation reted to the important document e had abstracted from Stephen edfield's shoe while the actor lay nconscious from Noel's blow—the ocument Milner thought was the ame one which had been passed Redfield, but which was only an ngeniously altered copy made to e useless for the conspirators.

"No," my father said next, "we aven't recovered it, but we have line on it. We have a very rong suspicion as to who has it, nd I think you may assure X that e shall have it back within the eek.

"No, the fault doesn't lie with our organization. You may set our mind at rest on that. I aven't found out yet where the ok is, but I'm on the trail, and would wager much that I'll have e book and the person who now has it in much less than a week. No use promising too much, too soon.

"Yes, I shall be right here if you want to get in touch with me, and if there are any new developments I'll advise you. By the way, this is off the record, and f.t.o. Good-bye."

Katharine and I barely had time to wipe the shocked amazement from our faces before he replaced the telephone and turned toward us. To both of us it had seemed impossible that this could be my father talking thus loquaciously over the telephone; the chief, famed for his extreme reticence.

"You have good poker faces, both of you, my father said, smiling and in high good humor. "I certainly cannot call yours a telltale face this time, Margaret, but I am sure that you are wondering at my garrulous indiscretion."

"It is not within our province to indulge in conjectures," I told him, and when Katharine paraphrased "Ours never to reason why," he gave one of his rare laughs.

Spencer Explains.

"Because you are such good soldiers, I shall explain," he said "This performance was staged solely for the benefit of the gifted Mr. Milner, who, I have no doubt, had his ear glued to an extension line all the time.

"I gave Hagner a bad few minutes wondering if senility had overtaken me, but perhaps you noticed my parting words to him?"

"Yes," Katharine and I assented

" 'Off the record' means nothing of itself, but was a signal to watch the next words or letters, and 'f.t.o.' means 'for theater only.' From that he knew I was staging something solely for the benefit of an eavesdropper, and that he could dismiss the whole thing from his mind."

My father's mood was so genial that I ventured a question.

"Do you think Milner realizes that you know he took the document from Steve's shoe?" I asked.

RUSH ON LICENSES

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—(UP)—As a "shipipng out" center for service men, the war has thrown the marriage office here into high gear. An all high speed was reached recently when a license was issued every 16 mintues of the day.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, March 7.

Sunday's horoscope is a most propitious one for advancing all affairs of a private and business nature. It is especially fortuitous for public, community and group interests or popularity.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which all their affairs will expand. Be alert to fraudulent or dubious intrigues or associates. Romance is also to the front with much promise of happiness.

A child born on this day will have many sound talents and creative abilities, which may assure it fulfilment of personal and public ambitions.

For Monday, March 8.

Monday's astrological forecast is for moderate success in business and in the good graces of superiors but the stress of the day is found in the social, domestic and affectional relations. There may be celebrations of engagements or marriages or other social affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a particularly happy and prosperous year, with the accent on social and affectional activities. Personal charm and allure are to the fore, but in all be modest, prudent and temperate.

A child born on this day may be inclined to seek the happy-go-lucky sort of life rather than business, and may be showy and prodigal. However, it may prosper.

"The Authority on Authorities"

DO YOU ENJOY IT?

IT IS A LOT more fun to watch your opponent twist, squirm, pull at his ear, bite his lips and run his fingers through his hair while trying to decide the crucial point of a hand which is pure guesswork, than to do those things yourself and have him watch you. But don't you sort of feel a little sorry for him, too? He keeps trying to see if there isn't some factor which will help him figure out the location of the important missing card or cards, but finally has to make a decision based mainly on how he feels.

West began with what is sometimes called "papa and mama" defense, cashing his aces of clubs, diamonds and hearts and then offering the diamond 8. The declarer won that with the dummy K, even though his own J had to go under it, for he could afford to waste such honors, especially since the whole hand depended on the spade K and he wanted to tackle that problem right away.

Knowing from the bidding that West probably had five clubs and four hearts, he had also seen two diamonds. Two cards were unaccounted for. There was no safe way to find out what they were, before playing trumps.

Well, the spade J was led from the dummy and East played the 4. Did East also have the K? If so, the finesse was the winning play. In that event, West had tried to make South think he held the K, to protect that card in his partner's hand. Or did West have the K, possibly unguarded, and had he tried to lure South into finessing? South could not decide, and of course he couldn't afford to try a third round of diamonds, and maybe get one ruffed by a small trump.

At length he decided to try the finesse, and the singleton K beat him. What would you have done, and why, if you didn't know the player?

Your Week-End Lesson.

When should a defender in the third-hand position not give a high-low from a doubleton on his partner's lead of a king from A-K of a side suit against a trump contract? Can you recall a definite example of the basic principle involved, or construct one?

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Former News-Journal A-league golfer Johnny Kleshinski has been sending me the Caribbean Sentinel, printed in San Juan, Puerto Rico, for some time now.

The first issue, containing the "coming" menu for Thanksgiving reached me on Jan. 12, and a pre-Christmas issue came two days later. Since then the paper, devoted entirely to army affairs and printed in both English and Spanish, has been arriving pretty well on schedule.

Up to now I haven't found anything of local interest in English, and the Spanish is all Greek to me, but the pictures of pin-up girls plentifully splashed through the Sentinel makes it an interesting enough publication. Even the pictures in Spanish.

When the last issue, arriving a couple days ago, contained a story of a visit to Caribbean camps by Pat O'Brien, Gladys Ahern, Pann Merryman, Patti Cranford, Frank Paxton and Will Ahern, I expected a letter from John would follow. Here it is:

Dear Rex:

Having nothing to do, I'm writing a few letters to let some persons know I still exist. Things around here are not so bad.

Our B. C. bought us a loud speaker system, installed in front of our barracks, and they call whoever they want from the office.

We haven't a bugler so we have our reveille, chow call, and taps played on records.

You know, of course, that retreat isn't played. There's no retreat with a war going on. And we're going to finish it.

I don't know what they will do when the records wear out. They'd better start drafting musicans. Of course Harry James or Charlie Spivak would do.

They had a Golden Gloves boxing tournament down here and one of the boys from our camp won the middleweight championship. His name is Eddie Banik from Murray City, O, on the outskirts of Athens. He gets a free trip to New York and a chance to fight in the Boston national tournament March 13-17.

We had another movie star, Pat O'Brien, entertaining the boys here.

By any chance are you getting the paper I sent you? Don't take too much interest in the pictures. We wouldn't mind having Betty Grable or Rita Hayworth here. By all means, this is a military secret.

While the boys were playing kittenball this afternoon I did a little practicing on my golf. What a life, if you don't weaken. Since I'm on duty now, I'd better pay a little attention to it, and will drop you a few lines later. Adios.

As ever,
Johnny.

PS—

JUST A PRIVATE

You can have your deeds of glory,
All your tasks so nobly done.
But if not for all the privates
Then this war could not be won.
Master minds may plan the battles,
And strategic things to do,
Yet it's just a lonely private
Who must carry these things through.

(Here's one I saw in a paper. It takes the cake. It's the truth. John.)

Warren Sets Pace In Westie League

W. Warren rolled a consistent string of 194-213-203 to take top honors in the Westinghouse "D" bowling league at Colony alleys last night with a 610 toal.

Unbeaten Clubs Win In Joust

Martins Ferry and Defiance Boost Record.

By HAROLD LISK

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Approximately half of the 464 Ohio high school basketball teams that started out the first of the week in quest of state laurels were dropped by the wayside today as play in most district and sectional meets passed the half-way mark.

* * *

Undefeated Martins Ferry and Defiance scored victories in "A" meets last night to continue their unbroken strings. In the class "B" section, unbeaten Utica, Champion and Clearview continued on the path to the state tourney at Columbus, March 27, but previously undefeated Dresden, Muskingum county champ, was knocked out of the running by Quaker City, Guernsey county runner-up, by a 45 to 42 score. Quaker City meets Hopewell in the finals at Zanesville tonight.

Martins Ferry's 19th straight win was recorded at the sectional at Tiltonville, where the Ferrians annihilated St. Clairsville, 65 to 35. Tiltonville, with a 13-7 record, eliminated Bridgeport to gain the other finalist berth there.

Defiance's victory, the 19th straight, enabled them to advance to next week's semi-finals of the Defiance "A" meet. Swanton was the victim last night by a 61 to 31 score. In the semi-finals, Defiance will meet Wauseon, winners of 14 of 17 games. Montpelier and Van Wert already had qualified in the lower bracket.

In the "B" ranks, Utica scored its 19th straight victory at the Westerville tourney by nosing out Pickerington, 36 to 32, and will meet Fredericktown, winner of 18 of 19 games, in the second round. Fredericktown defeated Bremen, last year's central district winner, 33 to 28. Other winners last night were Groveport and Alexandria.

Lowellville fell before Champion by a 60 to 38 score in the McDonald meet, as the undefeated victors recorded No. 19. Other winners there were Mineral Ridge and Columbiana.

Clearview, touted as one of the strongest "B" teams in the state, annihilated Homer, 85 to 18, in the Clearview sectional to gain the semi-finals where the perfect-record boys will meet Grafton, 31 to 29 winners over Henrietta last night.

In the "A" division, favored Dover won at the Dennison sectional, downing Barnesville, 36 to 30. Other first round winners were Coshocton and Uhrichsville.

Seeded Warren and Canton McKinley were victors at Youngstown, McKinley scoring its 17th victory against two losses by trouncing Youngstown Woodrow Wilson, 61 to 36. Warren annihilated Newton Falls, 79 to 29. Canton Timken and Youngstown Rayen were other winners last night.

Last year's "A" runner-up for state honors, Toledo Central, advanced to the second round of the Toledo meet by downing Clay, 53 to 30. Rossford, boasting a 12-won-one-lost record, eliminated Toledo Scott, 37 to 31. Sylvania was the other winner.

Lima Central, the favorite in the Findlay meet, defeated Fostoria, 53 to 31, to reach the semi-finals where they will play Celina. Logan, Chillicothe, Lancaster and Athens were winners as the "A" district got under way at Athens.

At Cincinnati St. Xavier upset seeded Cincinnati Hughes, 53 to 34, to gain the semi-finals. Seeded Cincinnati Elder also gained the semi-final round and seeded Western Hills recorded a first-round victory.

Shaw gained the quarter-finals at Euclid Shore by downing Berea in a second-round contest, 41 to 32. The Kent "A" tourney got under way with Akron Central Norton, Elyria, Ravenna and Akron Kenmore gaining first-round victories. Ravenna's win came by default when Stow withdrew from the tourney.

Elsewhere on the class "B" front, Gnadenhutten, Tuscarawas county champion, got by the first round at Dover as did Walnut Creek and Bolivar.

Lafferty, Belmont county champ and Yorkville of Jefferson county earned the right to go to the district meet at Steubenville by defeating Dillonvale and Wintersville respectively, in the Scio sectional.

Van Buren, boasting the best record of any team in the Bascom sectional (11-1), gained the second round by edging Alger, 35 to 31. Other winners were Attica, Chatfield and Wharton.

Huron and Sandusky St. Marys gained the semi-finals at Fremont, while Hicksville, Pettisville and West Unity advanced at Leipsic. Corning, Ames-Berne and Rockbridge were first round winners at Logan.

110 COLTS NAMED FOR KENTUCKY DERBY

LOUISVILLE, Ky. —(INS)— Headed by Count Fleet, star of Mrs. John Hertz's stable, 110 three-year-olds today were nominated for the sixty-ninth running of the Kentucky Derby at historic Churchill Downs on May 1.

Because of the phenomenal speed he displayed last year, Count Fleet rules a heavy winter favorite for the $75,000 added derby, which will be run in the face of the gravest obstacles that have ever confronted the famous Blue Grass classic. Col. Matt J. Winn, president of Churchill Downs, undaunted by rules set down by the Office of Defense Transportation, announced weeks ago that he would vote against concellation of the Derby "even if it had to be presented before an all-Kentucky crowd."

Geiger Pitches Moose Strikes

Rolls High Total as Young Gets Top Game.

Softball hurler Aid Geiger was in their pitchin' in the Moose bowling league last night at Colony alleys, leading the brothers with a 627 total on games of 197-206-224.

Brig Young, taking high game of 242, chalked up a 622 total.

Ohio Boxer Steals Show

Youngstown Youngster Shines at Chicago.

CHICAGO —(INS)— Two champions today stood out prominently among the eight Golden Gloves winners crowned last night in the Chicago stadium before a crowd of 20,621. They were Tony Janiro, 126-pound bundle of dynamite from Youngstown, and Morris Corona, of Ft. Worth, Tex., 147-pound titlist.

Janiro, 16-year-old high school freshman won the plaudits of the crowd throughout the tourney with his angelic facial expression and his battering ram punches. He had won 27 straight bouts without a loss before coming to Chicago.

Corona won his way to the final round via a bye after Davis Clark of Cincinnati was unable to make the 147-pound weight. He polished off Charles Bassalacchi of Milwaukee in a workmanlike manner in the first round of his title fight.

Four knockouts marked the champions bouts.

Result of championship bouts included:

Championship finals:

126 - pounds — Tony Janiro, Youngstown, beat Jack Graves, Minneapolis (3).

135 - pounds — Chuck Hunter, Cleveland beat Levi Southall, Kansas City, by technical knockout in third

160-pounds — Samson Powell, Cleveland beat Seaman Harry Joyce, Memphis, Tenn (3).

BUCK CAGERS WIND UP SEASON TONIGHT

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Ohio State university's basketball squads winds up its 1943 season tonight opposing Northwestern. A win would give the Buckeyes a record of six won and six lost in conference competition and enable them to tie for third place with Northwestern, Wisconsin and Purdue.

Big 10 Plans Service Tilts

Free Gates at Army Camps Loom Next Fall.

By TOMMY DEVINE

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— The Big Ten agreed today to a series of "free gate" football games next fall at mid-western army camps and naval stations for the entertainment of the enlisted men.

The plan was adopted after two lengthy conferences with military leaders. A final draft of a new conference schedule to include these contests is expected to be made today.

Last fall Big Ten teams played a total of 17 games against football teams representing the Great Lakes Naval Training station, the navy pre-flight school at Iowa City, Camp Grant at Rockford, Ill, and Fort Knox at Louisville, Ky. Only two of the games however were "home contests" for the service teams.

Lt. Comdr. Russell Cook of Great Lakes, Lt. Col. Bernie Bierman of Iowa pre-flight school and Col. Frank Bush of Camp Grant informed conference officials they were desirous of carrying on their competitive programs against Big Ten teams, but requested heavier home schedules for the benefit of the soldiers and sailors.

Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of the Big Ten, and Athletic directors of member schools immediately agreed to the plan.

"Last fall service teams received as their share of the gate receipts from games with Big Ten members $145,000," Griffith said, "that money went to the financing of sports programs, army, navy relief and welfare funds. Now however, it is felt it would be wise to broaden the program a bit and help furnish entertainment for the men in camps."

Since "free gates" will prevail for these games at the camps, Big Ten teams will forego the guarantees they usually receive. The only payment for the contests will be actual traveling expenses.

The size of the "contribution" conference schools will make in this way will be difficult to forecast, but it means the passing of excellent opportunities for lucrative gate receipts. Mid-season contests between traditional Big Ten rivals frequently netted each school approximately $35,000 and some of these may be wiped off the board under the revised schedule.

The number of games to be played at the service posts hasn't been settled but it is regarded as likely that four or five contests will be staged at Great Lakes and probably three each at Iowa pre-flight and Camp Grant.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

NEW YORK —(AP)— Talk about your wartime sports troubles!—only the kind-hearted intervention of a track fan who had 2,000 safety pins saved tonight's I. C. 4-A meet from disaster. It had looked as if the athletes would have to run without numbers or else deprive a lot of babies of their means of support . . . And Virginia's Tom Dodd gets to defend his high hurdles title only because he doesn't have any examinations scheduled today.

RACING RETURNS TO MEXICO CITY TRACK

MEXICO CITY—(INS)—After a lapse of 22 years, horse racing gets under way in Mexico City today with the opening of the $2,000,000 "Hipedrome de las Americas." Six races are on the card.

Fifty thousand fans are expected to witness the program, which will be opened officially by President Manuel Avila Camacho of Mexico and President Rafael Angel Calderon Guardia of Costa Rica by opening the gates of the new race course, situated in the fashionable suburb of Lomae de Chapultepec.

Fritzie Fouls, And Mob Howls

Bout With Beau Jack Follows First Script.

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK —(AP)— Some time, Fritzie Zivic, the ba-a-d-bad boy of Bash Boulevard, is going to get lucky in a New York ring over one of those "ooh" and "aah" body punches—and then you're going to see some fun.

* * *

For the second time in a month, the "oohs" had it on the "aahs" on a referee score card against him last night, and Beau (the Jumping) Jack squeaked through by the narrowest of margins to win a rough-and-tumble 12-round decision over the Pittsburgh pounder.

* * *

But the punch was so questionable and the edge the "oohs" had over the "aahs" about that body blow Fritz-eroo fired in the ninth round — which caused Referee George Walsh to take the heat away from Zivic was so close Promoter Mike Jacobs started to smoke up a third tea-party between the two thumpers.

Naturally, the $71,346 "house" the two warriors drew into the big Eighth avenue soupbowl from a record 1943 crowd of 18,813 didn't hurt the cause a bit.

The best chance for a third match would be, it was explained, if "something happens to Henry Armstrong." The rejuvenated hammer is slated to bump into the Beau here April 2 but if he should run into storm signals against Tippy Larkin or Al Tribuna, his next two opponents in between, Fritzie will bet his chance at the jumping jack for the third time in Hank's place.

The fact remains, however, that Fritz's "low" punch in the ninth round last night caused just as much of a "rhubarb" this time as has questionable "foul," — seen only by the referee— in the eighth round the last time he tangled with the ex-shoeshine boy from Georgia a month ago.

Wolves Get 15 Qualifiers

Michigan Bids For Indoor Track Title.

CHICAGO—(INS)—Winner of 15 qualifying places, the University of Michigan today moved into the dominating spot in the two-day 33rd annual Western conference indoor track and field championships at the University of Chicago field house.

The Maize and Blue threatened to win the team title in a walk and even to endanger the all-time scoring record of 49½ points hung up by another Wolverine entry in the 1935 indoor meet in tonight's final events.

Michigan's power was evident in the running events where Coach Ken Doherty's athletes easily led the field. The Wolverines, who held the Big Ten title for seven straight years before losing it last year, qualified a man in all except one of the four sprint heats.

Second among the qualifiers was Wisconsin which took second, third and fourth in the broad jumps and Ohio State ended up third by qualifying a man in each of the 60-yard dash heats. The men were Chet Thomas, Russ Owen, Dave Trepanier and Paul Hatfield.

Ohio State's hopes of threatening Michigan track supremacy received a blow when Dallas Dupre failed to qualify in the broad jump. Previously an injury had forced him to withdraw from the sprints and low hurdles.

Illinois was fourth in the trials, placing one man in each of six events. Herb Matter made the best showing for the Illini, getting three of the places. He won his heats in the dash and low hurdles and jumped 22 feet 9.8 inches for the best broad-jump mark.

Michigan will be led by Bob Ufer, holder of the world's record for the 440-yard dash. Ufer qualified for the 440 tonight with a :49.3 effort and also qualified for the half mile.

Wisconsin qualified for nine places Ohio State, eight and Illinois, six.

Freshman, 4 Seniors Picked On All-Ohio

Davage Minor, Toledo Star, Heads United Press College Selections

By GRANT DILLMAN

COLUMBUS—(UP)—Davage Minor, Toledo freshman forward, shared honors with four seniors on the 1943 All-Ohio conference basketball team selected today by the coaches for the United Press.

The four seniors were Earl Fisher, six-foot, two-inch Wittenberg forward; Stan Baughman, six-foot, four-inch Mt. Union center; Dave McDowell, six-foot, four-inch Muskingum guard, and Fred Amrine, five-foot, eight-inch Marietta guard.

Amrine's selection to the all-conference squad was noteworthy since he played on a team which finished third from last in conference standings.

The Toledo Rockets who won the mythical conference title by sweeping their four-game conference schedule were represented by a single player—Davage Minor, Gary, Ind., high school cage star who led the Rockets in scoring.

Capital University's Lutherans who furnished Toledo its stiffest competition and concluded their conference schedule with 10 victories and two defeats failed to place a man on the first team although Guard Herb Shrider and Center Dick Ott won second team spots.

Amrine, whose comparatively short stature makes him stand out among his towering six foot plus teammates, captained the Marietta team to only one conference triumph but his cage work was outstanding—both offensively and defensively. His selection also was surprising in that he was graduated in January, missing several games.

The other guard, McDowell, is an extremely good pivot man and had a fine defensive record. He is one of the small number of cage men who also play football. Speedy for a big man, McDowell averaged 18.5 points a game. He was instrumental in Capital's first defeat when he scored 30 points.

Fisher at forward is another standout. He scored 34 points against Ohio Northern this season to better his own Wittenberg record of 33 set last year. He averaged more than 20 points a game and generally was considered a good all-round player by the coaches.

Minor, although only a freshman, deserved his ranking. He has averaged 18 points a game during his first year of college play and sparkled defensively. Only 19, he is the youngest man on the squad. Minor still holds the northern Indiana scoring record.

This year's is Baughman's third appearance on an all-conference team. He made the United Press second team both last year and the year before. Recognized as the "sparkplug" of the Mt. Union team, Baughman accounted for 239 points in 16 games. He also held Leo Mogus, high-scoring Youngstown center, and McDowell well below their usual averages.

Although Harry Eicher was placed on the second team, he missed first by only a few points. If Eicher can score three points in Wooster's final game Saturday night, he will be the third Scot in the college's history to better the 600-point mark over three years.

Westies Lose To Lima Plant

Visitors Stage Spurt In Third Quarter.

A sharp shooting Lima Westinghouse quintet walked over Mansfield Westinghouse, 48 to 27, last night on the Y. M. C. A. hardwood.

Sparked by giant Ladd Bollinger, the winners rolled in 15 points in the third quarter while holding the Westies to five, to go far out in front, 38-20, entering the last frame.

Lima jumped off to a 10-6 advantage in the opening period on a pair of buckets by Smith, and one each by Corwin, Bollinger, and Rentz. They added 13 markers in the next stanza while Mansfield was getting nine, to make it 23-15 at halftime.

Joe Altamonte, high scorer of the evening with 14 tallies, almost single handed kept his team alive in the last half, collecting 10 of its 12 points. Lima chalked up 25 markers in the final two frames to pile up the 21 point margin.

Bollinger garnered 12 counters to take scoring honors for Lima.

* * *

John Simpson Hi-Y turned a close ball game into a rout with a 14-point spree in the final period to whip Y. M. C. A. Juniors, 40-28. Lou Snavely connected for 16 points to top all scorers

Buckeyes Lead In Swimming Meet

EVANSTON, Ill.—(INS)—With a total of 42 points, Ohio State today led the pack in the chase for the 1943 swimming crown of the Big Ten conference.

The Buckeyes were led by Keo Nakama, of Hawaii, who defeated defending Champion John Patten, of Michigan, in the 220-yard free style in 2:11:2 to set one of three new records established during the day.

Harry Holiday, Wolverine backstroke artist, set another new mark in the 150-yard back stroke preliminaries by covering the distance in 7:31.7 or 5.1 seconds better than the old Big Ten mark. The time also was 2.5 seconds faster than the national collegiate record and 1.3 second better than the world mark held by Adolph Kiefer.

Michigan followed Ohio State with 29 points as the teams headed for preliminaries and finals this afternoon and tonight in the 100-yard freestyle; 440-yard freestyle, 200-yard breast-stroke and 400-yard freestyle relay. Iowa has seven points, Indiana and Minnesota, five; Purdue, four, and Northwestern, two.

There are now six species of fish in Ohio which you are legally permitted to catch and sell. They are catfish, sheepheads, suckers, buffalo, carp and quillback. The Division of Conservation is compiling information for publication, telling how to prepare these coarse fish to make them more edible. Since these fish are plentiful in our streams and lakes, their use as food should help to relieve the meat shortage.

The black bears of Yellowstone National Park are feeling gas and tire rationing, too. For years the bears have been enjoying the park, and a good part of the 50 black bruins have turned panhandlers, living principally off the tourist trade. They get out in a road ahead of a car and wait. The drivers always stop and usually hand out cookies, candy or bacon to the bear. But now, with a big drop in tourist travel the bears will have to go to work for themselves again.

One of the simplest winter feeding stations to make is a peanut butter board, which is made by boring holes in a short piece of 2 by 4 board, and filling them with peanut butter. A little platform tacked on just below the holes, and the outfit hung in a tree, will quickly attract the birds.

Even though winter's winds still blow, it's not too early to begin planning and getting ready for needed hours of recreation and relaxation, at your favorite sport. And since the equipment you need is becoming more and more difficult to obtain, we urge you to make selections now from Yuncker's still complete selections of fishing tackle as well as golfer's supplies, campers' needs and other outdoor equipment.

Despite the fact that animals, birds, insects, and reptiles are easily available for use in pictures, there is no live cobra in the Hollywood collection. Fritz Holman met the demand by training Oscar, his pet black-snake to wear a rubber hood made to simulate a cobra's hood, and to erect itself and sway cobra-like. Oscar gets from $25 to $50 a day for his work.

Sportsmen who have tried to sew a patch on a tent, hunting coat, tarpaulin, or other heavy and stiff canvas material, have found considerable difficulty in forcing the needle through without breaking it. The New Brunswick "Fish and Game News Bulletin" says that if the canvas to be patched is first rubbed with soap the needle will pass through it easily.

What I felt that Scott envied Bill and . . I wonder if for every di- d woman there is always her and's friend . . . Perhaps he e first man she has to cope in her new status."

e Clinton Country club was niles from the city and boast- n excellent 18-hole golf e, several tennis courts and ge swimming pool. The club- was a low white building a center hall which divided ning room from the ballroom vith a veranda which encir- the entire building.

At 8:30 that evening the dancing had not yet begun, but the dining-room was crowded.

Carol, wearing a green sheath of a dress, sat with Freda, wearing black net, and with Scott and Ian. There were shadows of weariness beneath Scott's large, deep, dark eyes. His hair was smooth and dark, his mouth large, his rare but hearty laugh infectious. It was as though Scott had a secret and people liked him perhaps because they were always hoping that he would tell them his secret and because he could be counted upon always to be good-looking and agreeable.

Ian, a tall, lean man with a greying head, scholarly features and sharp brown eyes, was passive, distinguished and humorous.

Everywhere about her Carol saw familiar faces — Dee and Johnny Downs, Lillian and Browne Williams, Claire and Henry Porter—many others. Lillian and Browne had come over and spoken to her. The others had nodded and smiled in the old familiar way.

She was glad she had come, she felt at home and almost happy again. George, the waiter, had said, "I'm sho glad to see you back, Mrs. Sturtevant." Monsieur Corot, the hand-kissing dancing instructor to whom all well-brought-up Clinton children were sent for dancing lessons, had paused at the table to say, "May I dance with you later, Madame? I shall have them play a rhumba just for us."

Yes, it was the same as it had always been since Bill had belonged. She remembered how excited and proud they had been the night they had come to their first dance as members. Parking the car Bill had asked, "Do I look all right, Carol?" And she had said, "You look perfect. How do I look?" And Bill had said, "You look beautiful. I guess we've—we've made the grade, sweetheart." Little things like that. known only to you two, shared by no one else because you trusted no one else to know your fears and uncertainties — and because you trusted each other so implicitly.

"You see, I do know your country club women." Clive Holdridge had said. To think of that challenging, masculine face was to be shaken instantly out of apathy. A man to stir the imagination and senses, but also one to make you apply brakes to your heart.

Scott said in his grave voice, "You haven't played any golf yet, have you, Ian?"

"Not yet," Ian said, lifting his liquer glass. "Ground is too soft and they haven't whipped the greens into shape. Won't be long though. It's April . . ."

Freda smiled fondly at him. "Don't remind me. April to me, instead of being synonymous with birds feathering their nests, reminds me that a fifteen-room house has to be turned inside out with cleaning, that young Ian has to go to the dentist and that Aunt Minnie makes her annual visit."

Ian said, "You should hear that boy of ours read. It's amazing how quickly they learn these days. The new system of teaching seems crazy, but it works."

Carol said, "I learned with lentils. Every child went to school with a little bag of lentils and we formed the words on the desk with the lentils."

"I still don't know how I learned," Freda said. "And I'm still a mathematical idiot."

Scott inclined his hand toward Carol and smiled. "How's your rhumba? The orchestra is tuning up in there."

"I danced with a South American in Cuba. He danced beautifully."

"Don't go making any comparisons."

"And of course, Ian will dance every dance with me," Freda said. "In the bar and out again." She touched his hand and smiled at him. "That's all right, darling. I'll stick right with you."

But all at once something happened to Freda. When Carol turned to speak to her, she saw that Freda's face was as if frozen and her large eyes glassy in their stare. At the same moment someone brushed by Carol's chair. Though she did not turn, she knew . . . It was Bill!"

Scott and Ian saw him. They looked up, made a pretense at smiling, colored a little and looked at Carol who now felt frozen, too.

"It's Bill, isn't it?" she asked. If she turned her head, she would see him.

Freda said, "Yes. Bill and—and Evelyn. Don't look now, Carol. Everyone is looking." Looking straight at Carol, she said, "It was bound to happen. And as soon as people get used to the idea they won't think any more about it. Just now they have elastic in their necks, the fools! But if you can stick it out tonight . . . It's like licking a fever, darling. You've got to. You are not going to let her drive you out."

Scott said, "Let's dance, Carol. Maybe they won't stay."

* * *

She did not look at anyone, but she knew that everyone was looking at her as she got up and left the dining-room and crossed the hall to the ballroom. Shaking and hot, she put her hand on Scott's shoulder and held it tightly.

"Take it easy," he said.

She nodded. Was there ever a dance like this before? Was there ever a moment like this before? Dear God, let me live through this and I can live through anything! Put a smile on my face and strength in my body. Hold my heart together, for it is turning into tears . . . It's as if I were naked. . . . Emotionally I am . . . Nothing is as cruel as stripping someone into emotional nakedness . . . It's cruel . . . cruel . . . If you can hate, you can laugh and fight back . . . But when you are too hurt to hate . . .

Scott said, "It's the lousiest."

"Don't. That doesn't help . . ."

"It still is. He's crazy to pull a thing like this. He's lost all sense of justice and decency to—to humiliate."

"He belongs here. He has a right to come with his wife. Have they—have they stopped looking at me, Scott?" Everything was so blurred.

"Most of them. Ian and Freda have just come in and they've gone to a table. Would you . . ."

"Yes. I would."

When she reached the table and sat with her back to the dancers, Ian and Freda and Scott tried to make conversation. It was pitiful, their attempts to appear casual and normal and to divert her. She did not know how long she sat there stiffly with the music pouring over her.

And after what seemed an incredibly long time of sitting in one position she moved slightly and, turning her head, saw Bill dancing with Evelyn . . . There had been other moments which she had thought could not be surpassed in pain and hurt . . . But this surpassed them all . . . She saw Bill first . . . Saw his lashes flicker to cover his shamed eyes and the pained smile that made his expression a wry grimace.

Carol didn't smile. She sat there, hurting all over, and looked at Evelyn, wearing the black chiffon dress which did not conceal the long, lovely lines of her, at her sleek dark head and at the beautifully rounded shoulder touching Bill's. Evelyn, vivid, exotic, a smoldering sort of girl, incredibly lovely, understandably desirable.

She looked at Bill again and a series of pictures flashed . . . Bill, boyish, tender, ardent . . . Bill who could not bear to have an enemy . . . Bill sometimes selfish and at other times unselfish beyond all reason . . . Bill who liked blue shirts and blue pajamas and brown tweeds, who liked scrambled eggs for his breakfast and who was still childishly addicted to ice cream . . . Bill who permitted minor issues to upset him terribly, but who met major ones with strength and often with humor . . . And their young love and their young passion and seven years of marriage had brought them to this.

She lowered her eyes and looked away, but presently when she had to see him again, she saw him and Evelyn stop at Dee and Johnny's table. Dee was her friend, Carol's friend, but Johnny worked for Bill's company though in a lesser capacity than Bill. What other course had Dee than to be extremely cordial to Evelyn . . . Bill could have Johnny fired if he chose.

Carol said, and there was bitter humor in her voice, "If I've successfully passed my examination, I'd like to go home. I'm sorry for putting you all through such a miserable time."

Scott said, "That's okay. I'm ready to leave."

Freda said, and it was one of the few times she had ever seen Freda look defeated, "I'll call you tomorrow."

Ian said, "You're a good sport, Carol. You can take it."

When Carol and Scott left, Freda said, "It was cruel—cruel. I didn't think Bill was cruel."

Ian said gently, "He doesn't think he is. Being a man and a practical one, he thinks that Carol, young and pretty with plenty of money, should be sensible. There is nothing quite as dead as a dead love."

"You call that love?" Freda asked, dark eyes flashing. "You men . . . You're always talking about being practical and about its being your world and look at it . . . Just look at it."

Ian smiled and stroked his chin. "It's a mess. Since we agree, we can't argue, honey."

"Let's go home. I've had enough of this."

"Always my sensible little mama."

In Scott's car Carol said, "You're embarrassed. I don't blame you. She has driven me out, Scott. I'll have to resign my membership. Either do that or continue to go out there and be thrown with Evelyn socially. I could do that, but it isn't worth what it would cost me. I don't want to be hard and callous. If I did that, I'd have to be. And everyone would have a dreadful time keeping the two Mrs. Sturtevants straightened out. 'Which Mrs. Sturtevant?' they would ask. No . . . Our divorce doesn't make Bill less of a good golfer and a good fellow people like. His men friends will still want to have luncheon with him and play poker with him and have him out to dinner. Evelyn is new, and new people in a tight little community such as ours are always exciting."

Scott said, "It's rotten."

Carol said, "It's divorce, Scott. It's divorce that happens to a good many marriages. I saw the statistics but I've forgotten the exact figures. But the statistics never tell you about ugly little scenes such as happened tonight or what happens to the children It's such a thin line that holds marriage together."

"You're swell."

"Oh, I'm not. I'm jealous of her and I hate her. I'm human. I hate what belongs to me taken away even though I know that Bill was completely sane when he married her. He wanted her more than he wanted me."

They rode in silence until they reached the apartment house.

MANSFIELD BUSINESS IN REVIEW

McNew Plans Victory Garden Project to Aid Food Production

Farm To Be Largest Truck Garden In State

It is quite generally believed that the Victory Garden may go a long way toward solving the problem of food shortages in America.

The Victory gardens planned for Honeywall Farm, the A. D. McNew tract of 100 acres, four miles west of Bellville, will "keep 'em eating" at Max Diner in months to come.

McNew, proprietor of the Diner, has contrived a unique setup which he hopes will be successful in making his 100 acres produce more vegetables this summer than will be grown on any other tract of comparable size in Ohio.

McNew is inviting families to come to Honeywall Farm for a series of week-end camping trips or for longer summer vacations.

A good spot on Clearfork Creek, which provides opportunity for fishing and swimming, has been set aside for this purpose. Here electricity is available for trailer use and wood for fuel is plentiful. Fresh eggs, milk and as much meat as rationing will allow may be purchased on the farm.

Contrary to the time-trite adage, McNew contends that "all play and no work" makes Jack a lean lad. So he plans to provide his "guests" with a midget mule, harness, cultivator and an acre or two of productive soil for a Victory Garden. The plot will be fertilized, plowed and prepared for planting.

The "Victory tenant" will keep half the food produced on the tract for his labor and turn over the other half to McNew.

This surplus will be preserved in a canning factory which McNew has erected on the farm. He already has available 2,000 jars for canning purposes.

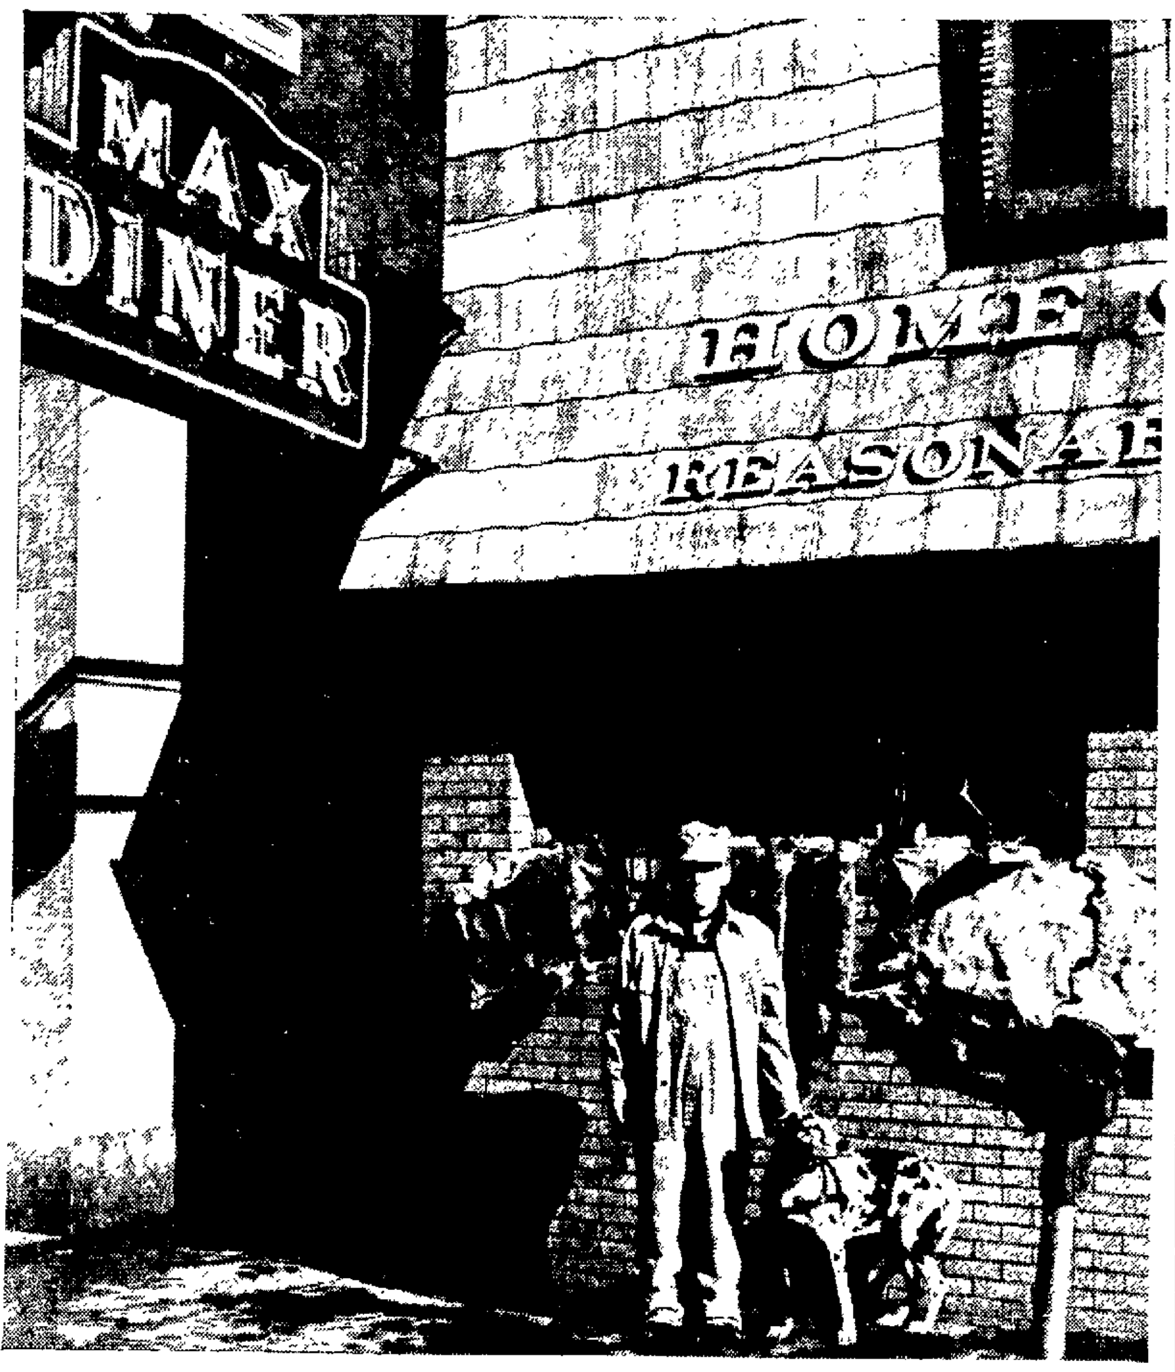
Honeywall Farm is 11 miles from Mansfield, four miles south of Lexington and four miles west of Bellville on State Route 546.

It is rapidly evolving into a sort of game reserve, the latest addition to the wild life family being a buffalo which was recently brought by truck from the Black Hills of South Dakota to Richland county. It's an experiment, McNew admits, but he's enthusiastic about owning a small buffalo herd someday.

Hoping to make Honeywall Farm independent in the matter of food supply, McNew has lately added half a hundred rabbits to his stock. He also has 250 chickens laying fresh eggs and 21 cows producing milk for Max Diner. Goats, guineas and ducks are also on the Honeywall list as well as 150 head of hogs headed toward pork sandwiches and farm cured fried ham dinners. The farm produces sassafras for tea to supplant the use of imported tea and coffee.

Latest project at the McNew place is a pond being stocked with fish and frogs by the State Department of Natural Resources.

This pond, McNew states, will not only improve conditions for wild life habitat but provide food and recreation for Mansfielders in the future. Water for the pond may also be used for the irrigation of Victory Gardens.



A. D. McNew, originator of the Victory-Vacation plan, is shown with "Queen" in front of his restaurant at 15 South Walnut street.

Hostess China Shows Crystal By Cambridge

When Deming Jarves pressed the first pieces of elaborate American glass at Sandwich, Massachusetts, a little more than a hundred years ago, he had no idea that he was making the collectors' pieces of today.

A complete set would be almost impossible to obtain now. However, at surprisingly low cost, you can enjoy reproductions in Cambridge crystal of these treasured American pieces—treasures so inexpensive you can use them every day.

At the Hostess China shop in the Southern Hotel building, you will find available in several Cambridge patterns, more than 150 open stock pieces.

QUENTIN HURT

T. R.'s Grandson Wounded On Tunisian Front.

WITH THE U. S. ARMY IN TUNISIA, Feb. 22 — (Delayed) (AP)— Lieut. Quentin Roosevelt, 25, of Oyster Bay, N. Y., son of Brig. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt, has been wounded in action on the Tunisian front.

Young Roosevelt, grandson of the late ex-President Theodore Roosevelt, was struck in the back either by a machine gun bullet from a strafing plane or by a fragment of anti-aircraft shell during a German Stuka and Messerschmitt raid.

TO REMEMBER

PALO ALTO, Cal. (UP)— William Miller and Grace Harriet left on a peaceful honeymoon following a quiet wedding here in which the maid of honor had to be rushed to the emergency hospital for an operation, a member of the bridal party backed into a waiter while a picture was being taken and upset the tray of champagne and glasses, a bridesmaid fainted, and the bride's veil caught fire while she was cutting the wedding cake.

FORGETFUL PUBLIC

ST. LOUIS — (AP) — At the St. Louis station's lost and found department they have a suitcase filled with liver sausage—or they did until it began to turn sour—and a fellow's pants. Those are just a couple of the items that have turned up recently. Boss Checker L. J. Meyer says "it must be the war; people leave their belongings right and left."

150 WARSHIPS BUILT IN MONTH

Knox Says Navy Also Got 700 Fighting Planes, Praises New 'Sub-Killers.'

er strides to be made this month.

Most significant factor in the secretary's report was the disclosure that destroyer-escort vessels for convoy work now are in mass production, and that "hundreds" already have been launched.

Smaller than destroyers but speedier and more powerful than corvettes, the new war vessels, Knox said, would release the larger warships for fighting duty with the fleet and with task forces now operating in the Pacific against Japan.

The warships completed included all categories: Battleships, cruisers, aircraft carriers, destroyers and submarines. In addition, Knox said that 100 large and 600 small landing boats were built in the same period.

Augmenting this fighting ship program, the maritime commission revealed that 130 merchant vessels also were built in February.

Japs Smile Only When Prisoners, Marine Reports

BROWNSVILLE, Pa. (INS) — The indomitable sense of humor of the fighting men of the United States marines was illustrated here by the comments of platoon Sergt. George Vrable, 22, of Brownsville, home on leave after a "hot" session on Guadalcanal.

"I guess I was zigging when I should have been zagging," was his only answer to friends who dropped in to inquire about the wounds which sent him home.

Describing a bayonet charge made by the marines on the island, Vrable declared that the Japs cried for mercy. Most of them yell it in English, too, he observed.

"It's funny about those fanatical fighters who joy in dying in battle and who face machine gun fire unflinchingly," he said. "They never die with a smile on their faces—they scowl. The only time they smile is when they are taken prisoner."

WILL PUBLISH WEEKLY

HAMILTON, N. Y. (UP) Colgate university is feeling the effects of the war in more ways than one. Not only are many of its sons now in service uniforms but the demands of an accelerated war program on the time of a depleted staff have forced the student newspaper, "The Maroon," to drop back to a once-a-week schedule after being a semi-weekly for the last 14 years.

REDS TAKE 29 MORE TOWNS IN RZHEV ADVANCE

Press Forward Northwest of Kharkov and West of Kursk In Wide Drive.

advances during the past 24 hours were in the area west and northwest of Kursk, where the Russians were pointing toward Konotop, important railroad junction 100 miles northeast of the big Axis base of Kiev on the Dnieper.

The midnight communique reported the capture of 10 towns and villages west of Lgov, 37 miles west of Kursk, during a battle in which 1,000 enemy officers and men were killed and 650 taken prisoners.

Some 40 miles to the northwest, the mid-day communique said, Soviet troops and tanks seized several more inhabited points west of Sevsk. This column not only threatened to outflank Konotop, but was believed approaching the railroad constituting Bryansk's last direct link with Kiev.

"In other sector, a fierce battle took place for one inhabited place which changed hands several times. During the night, our men dislodged the enemy and consolidated themselves in the inhabited place."

A number of additional villages west of Sevsk fell to the Russians yesterday, the midnight bulletin reported.

Northwest of Kharkov, where the Russians were driving toward Konotop from the south, the Red army captured another village.

The Russian offensive southwest of Voroshilovgrad, at the eastern end of an enemy salient some 100 miles southeast of Kharkov, apparently was at a standstill with stubborn fighting raging between the opposing armies.

Enemy counter-attacks were repulsed on the Taganrog front on the Sea of Azov.

Foresee Nazi Attack On Red Supply Route

LONDON —(AP)— Wide speculation over the possibility the Germans were planning a major attack on Allied supply lines to Russia was stirred today by publication of dispatches to two London newspapers—which failed to state the source of their information—that a powerful concentration of German fighting ships was being assembled in the Trondheim area of Norway.

Stories in the Evening Standard and the Daily Telegraph said the 35,000-ton battleship Tirpitz, queen of Hitler's war fleet, the aircraft carrier Graf Zeppelin, the 26,000-ton Scharnhorst, at least two cruisers of the Hipper class and a number of fast destroyers were in the concentration.

The prospect the Germans might attempt to break out of their fjord hideaways suggested the possibility of an even greater Allied ship hunt than the one which ended the Bismarck's career in flaming ruin and a sea grave in 1941.

An official source suggested the German fleet might be assembling for a battle against long odds rather than submit to being bottled up indefinitely as was the German fleet after the battle of Jutland in the last war.

be able to take a back seat merely as a bookkeeping concern instead of being regarded as a policeman."

Herring warned against neglect of civilian needs altogether.

"So much emphasis has been placed on war supply," he said, "that industry has been compelled to neglect the needs of the civil population. We are rapidly reaching a point where it is doubtful whether the civilian population can continue operating efficiently.

"The housewife must have the wash-boards and wash-tubs necessary to keep her home running. Factory workers must have shirts and overalls to wear to work. Civilians must have sufficient food to keep them strong. If we cut down on civilian economy much further we are going to find a slump in civilian morale and the production of guns and war material going down."

How To Help Break Up Black Markets

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Here are some of the ways you can help break up meat black markets, as outlawed by Agriculture Secretary Wickard:

Learn the regulations "lots of these persons do not realize that they are violating any order of any kind."

Check price ceilings and when purchasing watch for illegal prices — sure sign of a black market;

Retailers can look for the permit number stamped on each wholesale cut of meat before buying; and since at least some cuts in butchers' coolers should show the stamp, purchasers can help here, too;

Keep an eye out for private markets which spring up outside regular channels often indicative of an illegal trade;

In buying or selling livestock, keep careful records and check those connected with your dealings.

The permit numbers stamped on meat, starting April 1, will be issued by county agricultural war boards (formerly called AAA committees) in towns and small cities, and by local offices of the food distribution administration in large cities. These numbers will be issued in connection with permits slaughterers must obtain in order to operate legally.

Three Burglaries Lead to Renewed Police Searches

With three more house burglaries reported last night in the Mansfield area, police and sheriff's officers today renewed their attempts to solve the epidemic of home break-ins which have plagued city and county residents.

Three watches and a quantity of cigarets were stolen last night from the homes of Fred Schmidt and Jack Swartz on U. S. Route 30-N about two miles west of the city, Deputy Sheriff C. C. Gongwer said. The burglaries were reported shortly after midnight. Neither family was at the home when the houses were entered, one through the basement window and another through a back door.

In Mansfield, Lawrence Newsome, 535 Central avenue, reported to police that burglars obtained a diamond ring and cash amounting to $90 at his home last night.

Prowlers were reported at the homes of Alice Martien, 116 Washington avenue; L. C. Grogg, 110 Elm street, and by a North Main street resident. Police took two men into custody and charged them with intoxication. Officers said they believed a prowler scare at the Elm street residence was caused by coal which jarred from a passing freight train.

Deputy Sheriff Gongwer blamed the same burglar for the break-ins during the past two weeks at homes north, east, and west of the city. All the homes were entered by similar methods while the families were away, he said, and the footprints of one man were found in the snow early today at the homes on U. S. Route 30-N.

PROPER SEED PLANTING IN VICTORY GARDENS

By DEAN HALLIDAY

(Released by Central Press Assn.)

Although Victory gardeners are assured by the president of the American Seed Trade association that the supply of vegetable seeds is sufficient to meet the needs of America's 18,000,000 Victory gardens, care must still be exercised not to waste seeds through improper sowing or carelessness. Fortunately, too, the American grown seeds are of the highest standards.

A comparatively small quantity of seeds is required to plant the average home vegetable garden. Don't make the mistake, as one Victory garden enthusiast did, of ordering a pound of turnip seed for a backyard garden, when in reality such an amount is enough to plant an acre of ground.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, tiny seeds can be handled easier when they are mixed with ten times the quantity of sand. Unless mixed with sand in this proportion such tiny seeds are apt to be planted too thickly. Also, as illustrated, small dark colored seeds, or those which are the same color as the soil, are more easily seen and properly spaced if whitened with talcum powder before planting.

In general, the procedure for seed planting is to first make a shallow trench with the corner of a hoe alongside the string which marks the row. Tear off a corner of the seed packet, hold it open with the hand, and tap the side gently with the forefinger of the same hand, letting the seeds fall out thinly as you move along the row. By this method one can control the amount of seeds dropped.

Remember always to avoid waste one should sow seeds thinly.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Gas Book Missing—Loren Ernsberger, 188 Park avenue east, reported to police today that the "T" gasoline ration book has been stolen from the news agency truck he operates.

Fire Alarm—Central station firemen under acting Captain Clarence Lurz yesterday responded to an alarm from the home of L. M. Walton, 339 North Mulberry when a slight blaze of undetermined origin threatened the dwelling.

Expired Plates—George Henderson, Mansfield R. D. 1, was cited to appear in municipal court this morning on charges of operating a vehicle with expired Michigan license plates. He was arrested on U. S. Route 30-S yesterday evening.

Samaritan, Car Gone—Mrs. Herbert Robinson, 105 Blanch street told police last night that a "Samaritan" who had helped start her car reported losing the keys. Later she discovered the car and "samaritan" were also missing. Police have broadcast a description of the stolen auto.

Meet Wednesday — Members of the Mansfield section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers will hear a talk by J. Manuele, director of quality control for Westinghouse, at their meeting Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the Westinghouse auditorium. He will discuss "Statistics as an Aid to Engineering Judgment."

Fights, Jailed—Floyd A. Wheeler, no address, was sentenced to five days in county jail when he pleaded guilty of assault and battery before Municipal Judge H. H. Schettler today. He was arrested last night by Patrolman Glen Adams on a charge preferred by Nick Proicou, proprietor of the Green Leaf cafe, North Main street.

2 DRAW FINES

Truck Drivers Arrested as Vehicle Strikes Auto.

Two truck drivers were fined $10 and costs each in municipal court today after their truck had crashed into the auto of Clarence C. Lurz, 207 Harker street, veteran city fireman and an acting captain at Central station, at Fifth and Mulberry streets late yesterday.

According to Patrolman William Taylor, the truck was being driven by L. M. Peak, 270 North Main street, who was charged with operating a motor vehicle without a driver's license. Arlie Copley, 278 North Mulberry street, regular driver for the Spence Coal company, was arrested for permitting the unlicensed driver to handle the wheel.

Patrolman Taylor testified before Judge H. H. Schettler this morning that Copley told him the steering wheel usually stuck on left turns. Taylor also said that on several occasions he had ordered repairs be made on this particular truck.

Lurz said he had stopped his car for a red light and the truck crashed into it, the driver making no apparent effort to avoid the collision.

RED EYE ASSESSED LESS

SAN JOSE, Cal. —(UP)— Superior Court Judge John D. Foley rates a black eye much higher than a red eye. Mrs. Antoinette G. Locker sued Angelo Ghiorzo for $4,150 for a back-hand blow that gave her a black eye. Testimony showing that the eye was merely red, Judge Foley assessed the damage at $25, saying a black eye might be worth more, but not merely a red one.

DON'T MIX

Expert Scoffs at Idea Melons Take Cucumber Taste.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Victor H. Ries, Ohio State university extension floriculturist, scoffs at the superstition that "muskmelons will taste like cucumbers if planted side by side."

One believer informed the floriculture expert that "as long as the vines don't touch each other, there is no trouble, but if the vines touch, then they mix." Ries says this is "like saying that if you pass a Jap on the street, there is no danger; but if you shake hands with him, you will be part Japanese.

"There is no possibility," he insists, "of cucumbers, melons and squash hybridizing since each one of these is a separate plant species which rejects the pollen of all others."
